Wants Volunteer Community Help

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon called Wednesday for a voluntary action program to enlist many more millions of Americans in private efforts to help solve community and social ills.

Nixon said Americans traditionally have volunteered to help one another and many of them are asking what they can do.

The chief aim of his new effort "is to help match up the willing hands with the tasks that need doing," the President said. He aims to set up a clearing house to find out where volunteers are needed and to focus attention on the work they can do.

"Today, more than ever," Nixon said in a statement, "America needs the hearts and minds of its people, joined in those common enterprises, small as well as large, that are the mark of caring and the cement of community."

To get things started, the President said he will set up a Cabinet Committee on Voluntary Action, with Secretary of Housing George Romney as its chairman. Romney will in turn establish a similar office in his department.

At the White House ceremony launching the effort, Romney said his role with the private voluntary sector will be "ambassadorial" and that "eventually we hope to enlist every American as a citizen volunteer."

Nixon also named Detroit businessman Max M. Fisher to serve as his special consultant on voluntary action and to work with Romney's group. Fisher has been at work consulting with small groups of private leaders on effective means by which the government can stimulate voluntary activities.

Nixon said he recognizes that "this is an area in which government initiatives must not be imposed, and that a too-tight federal embrace can smother the voluntary principle."

"I will not allow that to happen," the President pledged. "Our efforts will be to assist, not to control; to encourage, not to coerce."

Romney agreed that in a measure the Nixon administration is seeking to provide answers for those who want to take up President John F. Kennedy's inaugural challenge: "Ask not what your country can do for you, but what you can do for your country."

Tito Warns Soviets: 'Hands Off'

KRALJEVICA, Yugoslavia (AP) — President Tito told the Soviet Union Wednesday to "leave us alone," and challenged the Russians to sit down for talks to settle their differences.

Tito spoke in this town on the Adriatic Sea to a meeting at the shipyard where he worked 44 years ago as a blacksmith.

"We must be ready against anyone who would think to invade our country," he declared in a speech broadcast to the nation.

Speaking about the world situation, the Yugoslav president said: "I am not an optimist at all, not as regards the immediate future, but in the further perspective."

He based his pessimism on what he saw as a trend for division of spheres of interests among the big powers.

He said Yugoslavia understands that big powers have more responsibility, but he denied them the right to divide spheres of interests at the expense of small nations.

Tito suggested a summit meeting of about 30 nonaligned countries. He said that on two previous nonaligned summits in Belgrade and Cairo, declarations on principles were made, but that the third nonaligned summit should not limit itself to declarations.

It should "concentrate on concrete agreements, on moves through the United Nations and in general to prevent the small and medium countries from becoming simple pawns in the game of the big ones."

He said Yugoslavia is the target of heavy attacks from the Soviet Union and some of the Warsaw Pact nations. He added that Yugoslavia was denounced even for "allying itself with (Red) China," noting amid heavy laughter of his listeners that this was "nonsense."

Yugoslavia is a chief target of Red Chinese propaganda.

Curfew, Guards Enforce Calm In Cairo

CAIRO, Ill. (AP) — A 9 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew remained in effect Wednesday night and National Guard troops patrolled Cairo where firebombing and shooting erupted earlier this week.

The curfew and the presence of 185 armed guardsmen ordered to Cairo by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie was credited with maintaining calm Tuesday night.

Mayor Lee P. Stenzel of the extreme Southern Illinois city met Wednesday with National Guard officials, state police and city officials.

Stenzel said after the meeting that lights would be re-installed at Pyramid Courts, a Negro housing development where most of Cairo's 3,500 Negroes reside. The city has a population of 8,400.

Stenzel said an official delegation from Cairo would visit Springfield Thursday for the second hearing of a special House committee studying the racial problem in Cairo.

The first session ended abruptly Monday when firebombings and sniping broke out.

The racial flare-up broke out about a month ago when a Roman Catholic priest, the Rev. Gerald Montroy, accused a citizens' group called the White Hats of harassing and terrorizing Negro residents.

The most recent disturbances, centered around the Pyramid Courts area, took place Saturday and Sunday when seven firebombs were hurled.

Eight firebombs were thrown Monday, many of them at Tri-Health Center which served Negroes from the housing area.

Li. Col. Lindell Roberts, commanding the guardsmen in Cairo, said that Wednesday's mission was the same as Tuesday's.

Artillery Battles Rage Along Suez Canal Front

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS — Artillery battles raged across the Suez Canal Wednesday following Israel's commando strike deep inside Egyptian territory and warnings from Tel Aviv that bigger attacks might follow.

One Israeli civilian was killed and three soldiers wounded by the barrage from the Egyptian side of the 103-mile waterway, an army spokesman in Tel Aviv said. He accused Egypt of starting the shooting. A land mine wounded three more Israelis in the area, the spokesman said.

A communique from Cairo said there had been no Egyptian casualties.

The firing began at El Qantara in the northern sector of the canal, then spread southward to the Great Bitter Lake and Port Taufiq in the south.

The giant artillery duel erupted a few hours after Israeli commandos had knifed 120 miles inside southern Egypt Tuesday night and finally stopped eight hours later.

The commandos blasted a dam and a bridge and destroyed high tension cables supplying electricity to Cairo, Israeli military spokesmen claimed.

An Egyptian communique insisted that there had been no damage, a dispatch from Cairo said there was no evidence of a power shortage in the Egyptian capital.

An Egyptian government spokesman, Mohammed Hassan El Zayyat, told a news conference in Cairo that Israeli raiding planes were driven off by intense Egyptian anti-aircraft fire and were forced to drop their bombs far from the bridges and electric power plant. He said three bombs fell harmlessly into the Nile and the fourth fell on a field.

He denied that Israel landed any commandos at the scene and asserted the bombing operation was conducted by low flying planes.

Zayyat said there was no loss of life nor property damage. Asked whether Egypt would retaliate Zayyat said: "These actions and reactions are connected. The situation has not been made better by this attack although it failed miserably."

Foreign Minister Mahmoud Raid instructed Egypt's U.N. delegate to protest to the Security Council, charging that Israel attacked civilian targets in avowed retaliation for Egyptian military actions.

Prime Minister Golda Meir's office in Tel Aviv said the Israeli raid was in reprisal for Egyptian violations of the 1957 cease-fire agreements.

Artillery duels have flared across the canal almost daily for two months. Recently the Egyptians have launched a number of commando raids across the canal on Israeli positions along the east bank.

The Israeli army has reported 17 of its men killed and 48 wounded in the shelling and the raids.

U.N. observers have reported that Egyptian gunners started much of the shelling. Egypt declared a week ago that it considered the cease-fire no longer binding because Israelis were building up fortifications along the east bank indicating that Israel planned to hold the area indefinitely.

Deputy Prime Minister Yigal Alon warned that the raid was intended to convince Cairo "war is not a one-way street and that the long arm of Zahal (The Israeli army) can reach anywhere in the region."

An informed source in Tel Aviv commented that the raid was "a clear warning Israel is capable of, and will not refrain from, choosing any target it sees fit along Egypt's main artery, up to the Aswan High Dam itself."

Student Unrest Across Nation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS — New trouble broke a relative peaceful spring at Columbia University Wednesday as members of the Students for a Democratic Society seized two buildings on the New York campus.

The student unrest ebbed and flowed across the nation continued to wash over New York's City University. There was trouble at Queens College as the 20,000-student City College remained closed.

Massachusetts Institute of Technology, banned temporarily any new classified research at two government-oriented laboratories. Students had questioned MIT's ties with government agencies.

The ban applies to Lincoln and Instrumentation laboratories which have contracts with the Defense Department and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

At Columbia, SDS students took over the mathematics building before classes began. After a midday rally, others marched behind red flags and occupied Fayerweather Hall.

A Columbia University spokesman said the seizure of the mathematics building was "clearly in violation" of a temporary restraining order banning such action. Apparently the Fayerweather Hall incident violates the same court order.

The university plans a student referendum on the use of court orders on campus and has put off seeking a permanent court order.

SDS issued a statement calling for support of Negro student demands, abolition of Reserve Officer Training Corps programs and open admissions for seniors from four local high schools.

At Queens College, teachers and administrators locked themselves in offices to protect records from demonstrators. They were trapped without food when students blocked entrances to the building Tuesday.

Classes at the 25,000-student installation will be suspended Thursday morning for faculty meetings.

City College, shut down April 22 by Negro and Puerto Rican students, remained closed as its president, Buell G. Gallagher, said.

negotiated with the student demonstrators over their demands for such things as a separate school for Negro and Puerto Rican students.

At Rider College in Lawrenceville, N.J., more than 700 students ended a seizure early Wednesday of the school's gymnasium, switching their protest to a class boycott in pressing for elimination of women's curfews.

In Los Angeles, students protesting military recruiting on the Occidental College campus said nine faculty members and 100 students have joined a hunger strike that began Monday.

Elsewhere: Hanover, N.H.—A sit-in at the Dartmouth College administration building by 125 students protesting the ROTC program ended early Wednesday. Students who began the demonstration Tuesday, said they voted to give the administration until May 12 to end the program.

Millwaukee, Wis.—Fewer than 100 Marquette University students, protesting an ROTC program, ended an all-night sit-in at a campus chapel Wednesday morning so the chapel could be used for morning services at the Catholic university.

N. Viets Using Soviet 'Copters'

SAIGON (AP) — The North Vietnamese are now using a small but significant force of Soviet-built helicopters in Laos and Cambodia, U.S. officers reported Wednesday.

Some of the helicopters are the world's largest, capable of speeding troops and cargo from North Vietnam to bases in those two countries adjacent to South Vietnam.

The choppers operate at night at near treetop level along the route of the Ho Chi Minh trail stretching down from North Vietnam, through Laos and into Cambodia.

Officially, the U.S. Command has no comment on the reports. A ranking officer admitted, however, that such reports had been cropping up and that it was known the North Vietnamese had a force of Soviet-built helicopters available.

There has been no visual sighting of the helicopters from the Vietnamese side of the frontier. The reports have come from agents, from radar sightings and at least one prisoner of war, who reported being brought from North Vietnam to Cambodia in a troop-carrying helicopter.

One type in operation is the Mi6, code named "Hook" in American military parlance, U.S. officers say. The biggest helicopter in the world, it can carry up to 120 people or around 2.2 tons of cargo. It gets its name "Hook" because a hook often is suspended from the helicopter to carry additional cargo.

Military officers do not expect the enemy to move troops by helicopters to the Vietnamese side of the border. With American control of the air, anything more than a hit-and-run mission would be suicidal.

The Communist command's offensive begun 10 weeks ago dwindled Wednesday to its lowest point. Staff officers for several weeks have believed that the offensive had proved a failure despite some spectacular shelling. They feel the Communist command is now reassessing new strategy to continue a war of attrition, meaning continuing efforts to keep allied casualties up to maintain pressure at the Paris peace talks.

This was the first time since the Communist command launched its offensive Feb. 23 that not a single significant rocket or mortar attack was reported.

Chicago Judge Holds Charges Against Students

CHICAGO (APP) — Circuit Judge Saul Epton denied the request of a university dean Wednesday that disorderly conduct charges against two students be dropped.

"Universities all over the country are filing charges (against students) and then withdrawing them," the judge said. "This has got to stop."

He offered the two students, David Weinberg, 18, and Charles Tranchita, 20, the alternative of donating $100 each to a boy's or girls club in lieu of a conviction and fine.

The youths, students at the University of Illinois in Chicago, agreed to donate. Failure to accept the judge's offer would have meant a conviction and fine with a resultant police record.

The students were arrested March 17 after they climbed to a window ledge 20 feet above ground at the university and remained there until arrested. The reason for their act was not disclosed.

Judge Epton denied a request of Warren Brown, dean of men at the school, that the charge be dismissed.

Mail To Congressmen About War Receding

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Clinton P. Anderson of New Mexico hasn't received a letter in two months from a voter concerned about the war in Vietnam.

Rep. Allard K. Lowenstein of New York, a critic of the war, gets only about three letters a week on that subject.

The thin files of the two Democrats are testaments to a decline in the number of letters on the war fired off to Capitol Hill.

In the offices where the volume has tumbled down, aides say citizens seem more concerned about backyard issues such as taxes and antismissile systems and seem willing to give the new administration a sporting chance.

But there are signs the lull may be ending. One letter writer, Mrs. Paul B. Shepard of Perkinsville, Vt., wrote, "I know I voted for a change, and it is frustrating to see the same old policies of Johnson still with us."

Of 64 offices checked, 31 said Vietnam mail has decreased since President Lyndon B. Johnson announced the bombing halt Nov. 1 last year. Except for three who said volume has increased, the rest said volume is light.

But domestic issues still trigger cascades of letters, and an aide from a northeastern state cringes at the prospect of the response to the proposed hike in postal rates.

And much of the comment on Vietnam is included as an aside in letters on other issues.

Vietnam complaints to Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., and Sen. Charles Mathias, R-Md., are in letters on the Safeguard antiballistic system.

Reps. Tom Meskill, R-Conn., and Richard Ichord, D-Mo., report more mail on student disorders than on the war.

Looks Like Conservationist:

Hickel's Image Changing

WASHINGTON (AP) — If three months as secretary of the interior hasn't made Wally Hickel feel like a new man, at least it has made him look like one.

Senators, editorial writers and conservationists shivered last winter at the thought of Walter J. Hickel, governor of Alaska and totally committed to industrial development, manipulating the already-abused resources of the "lower 48."

But today it's springtime. The flood of anti-Hickel mail that once poured into the Senate in terior Committee has dried up, and even some of Hickel's leading opponents are cautiously warming to him.

The retreat of Hickel's opposition may be attributable, in part, to the secretary's avoidance of public controversy in recent weeks. For the most part he has quietly pursued the administrative duties of the giant department he heads.

Close aides like to say that Hickel's "image" has almost reversed since he took office. Outsiders, especially onetime opponents, prefer the view that it's not so much the image as the man.

"I think he personally has changed somewhat," was one conservationist's view. "I don't think he's playing to the grandstand."

Still another suggested Hickel is becoming more of a conservationist. Hickel insists he always was one.

"I haven't changed," Hickel protested in an interview. "All they had to do was check the record of my actions in Alaska."

A summary by his office noted that in Alaska Hickel acted to protect wildlife; seized a tanker for polluting water; increased parks and recreation; and began efforts to preserve totem poles.

That same summary didn't convince critics during the days when Hickel was trying to win Senate confirmation. They pointed instead to dozens of speeches and actions in which Hickel gave priority to economic-industrial development.

Campaigning in 1966 he promised "a cataloging of the quantity and quality of state resources—and then going out and selling them."

"We must telescope time in developing Alaska," said Hickel, who once gave a task force only 90 days to develop a timber-harvesting plan for state lands.

With only 275,000 people in an area twice the size of Texas, Alaska's conservation problems were not overwhelming; its development problems are immense.

The Senate confirmed the nomination Jan. 23, but only after he took office did Hickel get a chance to deal with the three most persistent doubts about him.

One was a fear that Hickel was unduly friendly with the oil industry, especially that part of it trying to develop Alaska's

North Shore field. He had to face that issue only four days after his swearing-in, when an undersea oil well polluted the ocean off Santa Barbara, Calif.

Hickel stopped all drilling in the area, tightened regulations, and slapped unlimited liability for costs on any future polluter.

Second was the doubt among New Englanders like Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine whether the governor who had sued to block an oil-importing refinery in Maine could, as secretary, decide impartially on an oil import quota for that same proposed refinery.

"I wonder if I couldn't toss this (oil import policy) back to the White House like they tossed it to interior," Hickel mused in what he termed a "humorous" aside to the Senate committee. Then he added, "I know I can't."

If he couldn't the White House could, and did. President Nixon assumed that burden Feb. 20, to Hickel's great delight.

The most prevalent doubt among the 16 senators (all Democrats) who voted against his confirmation—and some who voted for it—was simply whether Hickel was qualified.

He had acknowledged he erred in his "conservation purposes" remark, explaining, "I think basically at that point I had Alaska in mind . . . millions of board feet of timber that have rotted for the lack of harvesting."

TRAVEL CLAMPS PUT ON SOVIET NEWSMEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department clamped down Wednesday on travel by two Soviet newsmen in the United States in retaliation for Soviet restrictions imposed on two American reporters in Moscow.

The department acted after failing to get a favorable response to a long list of U.S. complaints about Soviet treatment of U.S. journalists.

Press Officer Robert J. McCloskey said the State Department told the Soviet Embassy that until further notice Boris Strelnikov of Pravda and Genrikh Borovik of the Novosti News Agency will be refused permission to travel in the United States. Strelnikov is based in Washington and Borovik in New York.

In general, the proposal is patterned after the 20-year-old law permitting presidential initiation of moves to reorganize the executive branch.

In this instance, however, Nixon said that to make consolidation possible, "it would be necessary in many cases to make changes in the statutory terms and conditions under which individual programs would be administered."

He mentioned formulas, interest rates, eligibility requirements and administrative procedures that "would have to be brought into harmony." The grant consolidation act he recommended would let him suggest such changes, "but only within carefully defined limits."

Surrender At Cornell

The Cornell University faculty turned around and voted to drop all disciplinary measures against black students who seized a building and stocked it with rifles, shotguns and ammunition. Whereupon President James A. Perkins approvingly remarked: "Cornell will never be the same."

Indeed it won't. And neither will any other university that follows Cornell's lead. For the word from Cornell is that a great university can be brought to its knees if only the radical students get tough enough. Threaten violence, and the ivy walls crumble. Rather than risk violent confrontation, the faculty obediently lies down and lets the students walk over it.

The first reaction had been different. Shocked by the sight of armed revolutionaries emerging from a campus building, the faculty repudiated an agreement to forgive and forget. But two days later—two days in which professors were threatened and called vile names and one black leader announced that "Cornell has three hours to live"—the faculty voted to accept the surrender that came at gunpoint.

The good professors offered all sorts of rationalization, but the action itself speaks louder than they. Stockpiling guns is such an intolerable escalation of the campus disorders that to withhold all penalties is to mock justice. By taking this road of appeasement Cornell may have avoided bloodshed on its campus only to encourage worse turmoil and more bloodshed elsewhere.

By contrast, Northwestern University upheld fairness and justice by making its disciplinary action stick against 21 black students who tore up a white fraternity house. In spite of demonstrations and a hunger strike, Chancellor J. Roscoe Miller found no reason for altering the suspensions meted out by a university disciplinary board. Nor did the University of Chicago reverse its expulsion of students in the face of a similar hunger strike.

A portion of the campus unrest may indeed trace to failures in university organization and teaching, as many students say. But if the universities teach that violence and threats of violence are not punishable offenses, as Cornell is now doing, the battle to save them is already lost.

Questions Of The Heart

In the face of all that has been said about the danger of heart attacks, many people lean on the comforting notion that it is going to happen to someone else rather than to them. This reflects a common human attitude. Robert Louis Stevenson alludes to a variant of it in his essay, "Aes Triplex," in which he notes that people may live on the side of a volcano without feeling excessively insecure.

Yet the volcano may erupt; a heart attack may strike. When such things happen, the fellow who thought they couldn't happen to him may find otherwise. So it is useful to take precautions—to move away from the volcano's slope; to do, or stop doing, things that make heart trouble more likely.

This brings us to a list of 15 questions drawn up by two British doctors, H. Erick Wright and G. Pincherle, as reported by the Cooperative News Service. The doctors maintain that if you answer yes to three or more of these questions you run the risk of a heart attack. Do you, they ask:

Work 60 hours a week? Drive more than 20,000 miles a year? Take less than three weeks' vacation? Fail to delegate tasks to others? Get steamed up? Smoke 20 cigarettes a day? Take no exercise? Weigh more than 14 pounds over the limit? Feel tired and exhausted? Sleep badly? Neglect your wife and family? Plunge straight into meetings and office work after overseas travel? Take more than four drinks a day? Have a high cholesterol count and ascending blood pressure? Have no interest in outside work?

There they are—15 questions. If the two British doctors are right, how they are answered is of great individual importance to each of us.

A Population Program

Not long ago the distinguished British scientist-novelist, C. P. Snow, said this with regard to the so-called population explosion: "In many places and for many purposes . . . there are already too many people in the world." We in this spacious and richly endowed land have less short-run need than most other human beings to fear the implications in this statement. Yet not even the United States can long remain immune from the consequences of having "too many people."

This is recognized in a bill just introduced in the House by Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona. He wisely proposes that Congress establish as a national goal the formulation of policies and programs to stabilize our population by humane means.

Udall's measure would create within the Department of Interior a Bureau of Population and Environment whose function would be to investigate and publicize the relationship between population growth and natural resources. He also would set up a commission to make a two-year study of the whole matter and then recommend a comprehensive course of action to the Bureau and Congress.

There is no doubt that some such broadly gauged approach ought to be made to the problem. It is important to bear in mind, however, that this problem of population growth is in reality a complex of interrelated problems. While the impact of population on natural resources is obviously a basic consideration, we dare not focus solely on this aspect of the matter. The whole question of the quality of life in a more and more populous society must be thoroughly considered. We ought to get at it right away. The Udall measure provides a vehicle for doing so.

A GLANCE Into The Past

10 YEARS AGO

Gov. William J. Stratton Wednesday signed into law a compulsory plan for daylight saving time in Illinois. It is to be effective from the last Sunday in April to the last Sunday in October each year. Most cities already observe fast time, on a local option basis.

Pat Crowcroft is the new president of the Senior Methodist Youth Federation of Grace church. The other officers are Rita Armstrong and Pat Phillips.

Arthur Thatcher of Jerseyville, a long-time correspondent of the Journal Courier, is this year's winner of the poem writing contest sponsored by the Versewriter's club of Springfield, Ill.

20 YEARS AGO

Mayor Ernest L. Hoagland has been elected first vice president of the Illinois Municipal League.

Father Raymond Franzen, assistant pastor at the Church of Our Saviour for the past seven years, has been assigned to Sacred Heart church in Villa Grove, Douglas county.

Private Participation Approach Urged

Model Cities Program Revisions Stress Efficiency

By H.L. SCHWARTZ III

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration is revising the controversial model cities program with the hope of eliminating confusion over who is in charge at the local level—the citizen or City Hall.

Secretary of Housing and Urban Development George Romney indicated at a news conference Monday that this was a principal aim of seven revisions to the program that Lyndon Johnson reportedly believed as he left office was the best instrument in the war on poverty. "Final authority for the city must be the local officials," Romney said.

"If the citizens do not think the officials are wise, they can get rid of them" presumably through the electoral process, Romney said.

Created by Congress in 1966, model cities has cost the taxpayer $23 million in three years with not one program for the 150 cities involved yet out of the planning stage.

The model cities' concept is an integrated approach to solving the problems of the urban poor with across the board improvements in housing, schools and recreation.

Critics argue the program is vague and that spending could get out of hand. Some opponents also forecast the program will turn into a "domestic Pentagon," gobbling up huge expenditures without noticeable result.

Throughout Romney's news conference it was a little unclear just how the revisions would approach this major spending criticism.

Implicit in all seven points was the intention of greater efficiency.

But Romney was asked specifically if he foresaw "massive spending" once the Vietnam war was over.

"I expect to see a whole reordering of priorities," Romney said.

The revisions came after a White House meeting last week with the mayors of 10 of the nation's key cities. But one revision contained a pledge of greater efforts to involve the states in model cities.

Romney said this wouldn't mean more state control. He said the states would have no more control except over federal money that would go to them directly anyway.

The revisions did move toward fulfilling two of President Nixon's campaign themes—the block grant approach and increased participation of the private sector.

Romney said those model cities plans that showed the most private participation would be given priority by the federal government.

Romney said the President was fully behind the new approaches.

Soviet Knew Frustration When Ghana Seized Ships

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA) — Now is a good time to recall that last autumn the tiny African nation of Ghana seized two Russian "fishing ships" off the Ghanaian coast.

The vice chairman of Ghana's ruling National Liberation Council said at the time it was interesting coincidence that these two ships happened to be in Ghanaian waters at a time when there was active underground plotting to bring pro-Communist Kwame Nkrumah, the former president, back into power.

As the vice chairman well knew, the Soviet Union regularly uses its far-ranging fishing fleet for espionage and for assisting local undergrounds. Moscow protested diplomatically. It shut off shipments of petroleum.

But though the Soviet Union thus sought vigorously to have the ships and men immediately released, neither Moscow's exhortations nor its veiled threats had any effect on the Africans.

As one specialist who watched the whole procedure from beginning to end puts it, "The Ghanians took their own sweet time."

They held the Russian ships, the two captains and the crewmen for months while they conducted a complete investigation and brought the matter to court.

Finally—but not until they had satisfied themselves the Russians were not, in fact, connected with this particular plot to help Nkrumah back to power—they fined the two captains for being within the 12-mile limit and released them, their ships and crews.

The captains and crews were not released, in fact, until this March.

Now Ghana is much smaller and weaker than North Korea. At last count the population stood at eight million. Its military forces are estimated at 17,000, with a reserve Workers Brigade of 7,500.

The Ghanaian navy has two corvettes, three minesweepers, a training ship and a new frigate either at hand or on the way.

The Ghanaian Air Force has 17 transports, 17 helicopters, a communications unit of six planes and some training planes at its flying school.

Russia certainly did not have to fear that Britain or the United States would rush to defend Ghana militarily.

Yet the Russians were frustrated. There's no doubt North Korea's capture of the Pueblo, the torture of its crew and the subsequent shooting down of a U.S. Navy reconnaissance plane with 31 lives lost were far more serious matters than the taking of the Soviet fishing vessels, even though they were of a type the Russians frequently use for espionage.

Nevertheless, this incident demonstrates how the Russians, who invaded Czechoslovakia, find themselves frustrated when challenged by a tiny nation half a continent away.

Ann Landers:

Asks Consideration For Retarded Children

Dear Ann Landers: I am 17 and have a retarded brother 20. My parents have done a wonderful job of making my brother feel loved and wanted. They have taught us to be kind and considerate of him. Since early childhood we have been told, "Treat Brother as though he were normal."

Brother lives away from home in a lovely place where they have cottages. They can take only 100 boys, so we were lucky. The whole family went to visit Brother last week and came home heartbroken. The boys had decorated the dining room for company and set up a special table. Only ten people besides our family showed up.

I can't understand how parents can neglect a retarded child. Surely they realize that retarded children have feelings. Retarded children know when they are being ignored.

Please print my letter, Ann, even though there's not much you can say. Some folks need to be reminded.—A Sister

Dear Sister: You reminded them—and in a way I never could. Thank you.

Dear Ann Landers: Please change the language and make this letter printable. I need your help. Or should I say WE need your help. The problem is just as much my husband's as it is mine.

When our son comes home from college for a weekend or holiday, it wrecks our home life, or I should say our sex life. Don't misunderstand. Van is a great kid, no trouble whatever, but his sleeping habits are weird. He walks around until 3:00 a.m. When we had our big house, it didn't matter because our bedroom was upstairs. But when Van went away to college, we moved into an apartment.

My husband says I shouldn't let this bother me. But I simply can't relax when the boy is practically beside our door. Am I crazy? Any suggestions?

Thanks.—Inhibited

Dear In: Most people have a radio or a TV in the bedroom. Let there be music. You're welcome.

Dear Ann Landers: TV is getting so rough on our-age daughters are afraid to turn the set on when they have boys over. I can't say that I blame them. Several of the new commercials are in terrible taste. Some of the so-called "entertainment" shows are rotten.

I asked our minister what can be done about it. He made an excellent suggestion. He said those who are offended by what they see on TV should not sit by and allow garbage to be dumped in their living rooms. Telephone the station and in a polite but emphatic manner express your opinion about what is being shown. (The station keeps track of such calls.) Next write or wire the sponsor and tell him you will not buy his products and why. Print this, please, Ann. Let the viewers know we do have a choice.—Sick of Trash

Dear S.O.T.: Your clergyman is right. If enough complaints come in, the offensive material will be scrapped and we'll get talent instead of junk.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Law For Today

Q. My will states that if my named beneficiaries predecease me, my estate will go to my descendants who survive me, "per stirpes" and not "per capita." What does this mean? It's all Greek to me.

A. What's Greek to you is really Latin and the terms make an important distinction in the manner in which your estate may be distributed. "Per stirpes" means that descendants are to share the portion of the estate their deceased ancestor would have received. "Per capita" means that descendants are to receive equal shares regardless of what their respective ancestors' portions would have been.

As an illustration, assume a person left his estate to two sons to be shared equally. Both sons predeceased him. One had one child; the other had two children. With a "per stirpes" provision, the first son's only child would get half of the estate and the second son's two children would each receive a fourth. With a "per capita" provision, each of the three would get one-third.

Company Cafeteria Haven For White Collar Workers

By HAI BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — If you can't find a white collar worker at his desk today, the chances are he's in the company cafeteria—and probably doing something besides eating.

For the company cafeteria has become his home away from home during working hours, his club, his pub, his library, his recreation center.

No one knows for sure what executive genius first thought up the idea of the company cafeteria. But he must have brought it up at a top-level conference, as follows:

"Half our staff are spending their time at lunch going shopping, watching daytime movies, and wandering into pool halls. They're wasting half the work day."

"Mind you I'm just thinking out loud, but why don't we serve them lunch on the premises? Then we could keep an eye on them."

And so, innocently enough, the company cafeteria was born. Since then the wily peons of the business world have converted it to their own devious uses, and what started out as a management boon has often evolved into a management burden.

Look around your own company cafeteria and you'll probably find the following types pretty familiar:

"Bargain Ben"—He never has time to eat. To him the company cafeteria is a clearing center for his own private business operations. He ambushes each employee in line and asks, "Want to buy a secondhand car or sublet an apartment? Well, then, how about a three-year-old parakeet for $15 that curses in Portuguese?"

"The Fond Lovers"—Here, sitting knee to knee staring soulfully into each other's eyes as the vanilla ice cream melts unheeded in their paper cups, are the junior executive and the boss' secretary. To them the company cafeteria is a kind of restrained indoor passion pit.

"Hermit Herman"—He thinks everyone else is an illiterate dullard. He huddles in a corner reading "The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire," and hisses if those at a nearby table become too loud.

"Hangover Harry"—The office toper creeps in silently, takes half a cup of coffee, goes out to the locker room and fills it with bourbon, returns and starts nipping and sipping. By 1:15 his head falls back, and he's snoring.

"The Chronic Complainer"—Nothing on the menu ever pleases him. "What, nothing but meatballs and mildewed fish again?" he moans. At least once a week he circulates a petition demanding that the management start putting in such dishes as shish-kebab, truffles, and moo goo gai pan with wild rice.

"Sanitary Sid"—This place looks like a pigsty," says the office hypochondriac, who is sure an epidemic will spread from the cafeteria before nightfall. He rinses and wipes each utensil before using it, and after each meal rushes out to the washroom to gargle out any germs he may have picked up.

Of course, some old-fashioned employees do eat in the company cafeteria. But for the rest of them it is just a nice place to gossip, carry on a romance, play gin rummy, start a rumor, or launch a plot against management.

"No."

Now I use a crochet hook to pick up the stitches, completing the first stitch and then slipping it on my knitting needle. I eliminate the ridge and have a nice finished seam. When picking up a knit stitch, insert the hook from the front with the yarn held in the back and for a purl stitch hold the yarn in front and insert the hook from the back side. It may seem awkward at first but with practice becomes as easy as making a knit or purl stitch with a knitting needle.—EUNICE

Another modern bidding gadget is the fragment bid. Almost every expert uses some form of it today. Some use it rather simply, others complicate it so far that they confuse themselves.

North's jump to four clubs was an example of the simplest form of fragmentation. His bid said, "Partner, hearts is our suit and I could have just bid four hearts but I want you to know that part of my strength is a club singleton."

Specifically this jump in the third suit when a simple bid in that suit would not have been passed shows exactly this.

Game-going support for partner and a singleton in that third suit.

South used Blackwood to check aces and kings and bid seven even though he knew that one king was missing. The odds were that the missing king would be in clubs.

The bidding was excellent indeed. We regret to report that expert bidder South played the hand like an apprentice. All he had to do to make the contract would have been to trump a club at trick two, come back to his hand with a trump, trump his last club, draw trumps and claim his contract. But South was in too much of a hurry. Instead of using two of dummy's trumps that way South drew three rounds of trumps before counting to 13. Then he went after the spades but since East had hung on to all five of his, South could not set up dummy's last spade for a discard. He did get rid of one club on the king of spades and was still able to ruff the last one. When he finally went after diamonds, it turned out West had been unkind enough to hang on to all four of his, and the fine bidding merely led to a set.

GET IN THE SWIM

NEW YORK (AP) — No, it is definitely not too soon to start shopping for that swimming pool, even if there's still a chill in your area of the country. Ninety per cent of the potential pool buyers are looking for that above-ground splash of relief right now. The desire to swim in your own backyard has increased sharply. In fact, the United States Department of Health reports that by 1980, swimming will be Americans' greatest, most popular form of recreation. It has already proven to be the best form of exercise, according to Coleco Industries, Inc., the country's largest manufacturers of above-ground swimming pools. The luxury of the backyard above-ground swimming pool has become an economic reality to millions of people. And, it's the cheapest and most economical way to spend a vacation. Heralding an entirely new trend in swimming, in order to meet the demands of space age recreation, Coleco introduced an automatic backyard above-ground custom pool combination which brings automation to the family swimming scene. Because it's automatic, the pool combination literally takes care of itself. Once the filter system is switched on, filtration and purification of the pool water are accomplished automatically, requiring practically no attention at all. A special control unit programs the system to go on and off by itself at the exact hours designated.

THE DOCTOR SAYS

Bland Diet Recommended
In Spastic Colitis Case

By Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D.
Q—What causes spastic colitis and what is the treatment?
A—Spastic colitis, irritable colon or mucous colitis is a by-product of a high-strung nervous system. Contributory causes include food allergies, the use of laxatives and overindulgence in fresh fruit and vegetables. Anyone who has persistently loose stools should have them examined for amebas or other disease-causing germs. The victim must take a bland diet and antispasmodic drugs while efforts are made to eliminate all possible causes — not an easy task. A short course of tranquilizer may be helpful. Q—I have a bowel movement about 30 minutes after every meal. What causes this and what can I do for it?
A—This is a sign of an irritable bowel. If a low-residue diet doesn't control it you should see a specialist in gastrointestinal diseases. Q—I have been taking laxatives for about 15 years. I've gone to four different doctors who came up with four different solutions but I still have to take a laxative every night. My stomach is in a turmoil most of the time. How can I break the laxative habit?
A—The constant use of laxatives will put anyone's "stomach" (it's really your intestines) in a turmoil. The laxative habit is usually the result of misconceptions about the workings of the digestive system. First of all, your aim should be not necessarily one stool a day but a stool about two fingers thick and of firm consistency regardless of the elapsed time between stools. If you skip a day, then after 36 to 48 hours have a loose stool, you are nearer to having diarrhea than constipation. Laxatives are harmful in that they sweep your food through the bowel too fast to permit complete digestion and they irritate the bowel, causing mucous colitis. With a little care, one can regulate the bowels by taking that amount of vegetable and fruit every day necessary to keep the stools firm. You must avoid the temptation to load up on your favorite fruit just because it is in season. Regularity of your roughage intake will give you regularity of stool output.

Please send your questions and comments to Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D., in care of this paper. While Dr. Brandstadt cannot answer individual letters, he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

Pompidou Gets Middle-Class French Support

PARIS (AP) — Valery Giscard d'Estaing and his Independent Republican party announced their support Wednesday for Georges Pompidou as France's next president. They asked assurances that he be less authoritarian than Charles de Gaulle and seek closer ties with the Western alliance.

The support of the Independent Republicans, which has a wide middle-class backing, was a sizable boost for Pompidou, once a premier under De Gaulle.

Giscard d'Estaing, a former finance minister, said the decision was made because of "the present situation which calls for calm and forbids rivalries."

Normally, he said, he himself would have been a candidate for the presidency in 1972, but was now concerned with finding a man capable of assuring the immediate future of the nation.

With Independent Republican support, Pompidou reduced the only significant threat to his hopes—a broad alliance between the center and the moderate left.

The Independent Republicans unanimously backed De Gaulle's heir apparent but asked for assurances that a Pompidou presidency would be less authoritarian and adventuresome than De Gaulle's.

Specifically they asked for a liberalized information policy, better relations with the legislature, respect for constitutional limitations on presidential power, construction of a united Europe and closer ties with the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Pompidou made his bid for Independent Republican support Tuesday, telling a party caucus his objective was to assure continuity of Gaullist policy, but promising "an opening." This was taken to mean he was willing to reconsider some of De Gaulle's policies.

The Gaullist-Republican alliance would help rally liberal middle-class votes to Pompidou. Widespread middle-class defection was held largely responsible for the defeat of last Sunday's national referendum which De Gaulle chose to make a vote of confidence in his leadership.

Harold Swain Dies, Services Set Saturday

Harold E. Swain of Route Three, Jacksonville, a lifelong Morgan County resident, died at Barnes hospital in St. Louis at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday.

He was born in Morgan County April 5, 1897, son of James and Emma Dimmitt Swain. He was married in 1921 to the former Lora Bancroft, who survives with the following children: James B. and William A., both of rural Jacksonville, and Frances, wife of Donald Martin of Mt. Pleasant, Mich.

Also surviving are five grandchildren: David, Dick and Gary Swain, Bob and Jane Martin and one sister, Clara, wife of L. N. Dailey of Yankton, S. D.

He was preceded in death by a twin brother, Horace; another brother, John D. Swain; a sister who died in infancy and one granddaughter, Susan Swain.

Mr. Swain, a veteran of World War One, was a member of the Congregational church and the Morgan County Farm Bureau. He graduated from Jacksonville High School and received a degree from Illinois College in 1918.

Services are scheduled at 2 p.m. Saturday at Cody and Son Memorial Home. Reverend Dale Robb will officiate with interment to be in Diamond Grove cemetery.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even if the Paris Peace talks make no progress some American troops may be withdrawn from Vietnam as the Saigon government takes over a greater share of the war, a top U.S. diplomat said Wednesday night.

Undersecretary of State Elliot L. Richardson conceded the Paris discussions have not made "any real progress to date" in dealing with the major issues of peace.

Richardson spoke of one or more decisions sometime in the future on U.S. troop withdrawals. But he did not speculate on when the first decision might be made.

He discussed the troop issue and other problems in an interview on the National Educational Television Network.

"I think basically what we want to do," he said, "is step up and give continually higher priority to what you might call the 'Vietnamization' of the war. So as progress is made there, one might expect some withdrawals as a result of that progress."

"Even if we don't achieve significant progress toward a negotiated settlement in Paris, we still look forward to a period when the capability of the South Vietnamese government to carry forward the war and maintain its own security will be great enough to justify withdrawals."

Stunned onlookers around the amphitheater-like paddock watched in silence as Shoemaker was carried away and taken to nearby Centinella Hospital. Later a hospital aide said the jockey was under sedation and undergoing extensive X rays.

Dr. T. H. Haller, the track physician, said after examining early X rays that Shoemaker's pelvis was fractured in two places and that he also suffered bladder injuries.

"She backed up and landed hard on my pelvis before I had a chance to get out of the saddle," Shoemaker said.

Shoemaker had won the first two races of the afternoon.

VETERAN CHANCE SOLD TO RICHMOND ANAHEIM (AP) — Veteran Bob Chance was sold Wednesday by the California Angels to the Richmond club of the International League.

Angels general manager Dick Walsh announced the sale but did not disclose terms. Chance, who had a shot at first base for the Angels, hit only .143 in five games.

Walsh also announced the Angels had acquired catcher Dave Adlesh from Richmond and that he will be assigned to California's Pacific Coast League club at Hawaii.

Adlesh played for Houston in 1967 and 1968 and then was traded first to St. Louis and then to Atlanta which assigned him to Richmond.

In two other moves, the Angels reinstated infielder Chuck Cottier, who has been on the disabled list, and optioned pitcher Moe Aguirre to El Paso on a 24-hour recall basis.

Shoemaker Hurt In Accident At Track Paddock

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Ace jockey Bill Shoemaker was thrown from his mount in a freak accident in the paddock at Hollywood Park Wednesday and suffered a fractured pelvis and internal injuries.

The 10-time national riding champion had been making a great comeback from a broken leg sustained Jan. 23, 1968, at Santa Anita.

The Shoe's latest misfortune will keep him from riding the well regarded Arts and Letters in Saturday's Kentucky Derby. The track doctor said the 37-year-old rider will be out of action at least six months.

The accident occurred just before the fourth race when his mount, Poona's Day, abruptly backed up, appeared to sit down and pinned the rider against a tick hedge.

Boswell Single In 9th Inning Nets 2-1 Margin

MONTREAL (AP) — Ken Boswell singled home Rod Gaspar in the ninth inning, giving Tom Seaver and the New York Mets a 2-1 victory over the Montreal Expos Wednesday night.

Gaspar opened the ninth with only the fourth hit off Gary Wegener, 1-1, and stole second before Boswell singled to right field, handing Seaver his second victory against two losses.

Seaver allowed only five hits, but one of them was John Bateman's third homer to tie the game in the seventh inning. It was Montreal's first run in 19 innings.

The Mets took a 1-0 lead in second when Cleon Jones tripled off the center field fence and Ed Kranepool hit a sacrifice fly.

Jack, Casper Rated Favorites At New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Big Jack Nicklaus, rested and ready, and Buffalo Billy Casper, ranked as the top favorites Wednesday in the $100,000 Greater New Orleans Open golf tournament.

Both took a brief rest last week, Casper because of an allergy problem and Nicklaus to whip his sagging game into shape.

"I think I'm playing pretty well now," Nicklaus said. "But it's hard to tell. Sometimes you think you're playing well and you don't. Sometimes you think you're not playing well and you have it all."

Tournament officials hammed it up for Nicklaus, who was quoted in a light vein last week as saying that, at the age of 29, he may be too old to play competitive golf.

They met "the old man" at the airport Wednesday with a wheelchair and a nurse.

"You've got to be kidding," big Jack said, and then posed for pictures.

"Maybe they're right," he quipped. "The way I've played the last few weeks, maybe I am too old."

The long, flat 7,000 yard, par 72 Lakewood Country Club course appeared tailored to Nicklaus' game.

"It's a hitter's course," flashy Doug Sanders said.

Program Helps Heart Patients Get Things Off Their Chests

PERTH AMBOY, N.J. (AP)—Sam's wife will not even let him take out the garbage.

Joe's wife continually harps on his eating habits.

Mrs. J. has no one to "protect" her; she lives alone.

Mr. A. picks fights with his wife so he can avoid sexual relations.

Mr. S. wonders if his job will be waiting for him.

Each of these persons has two characteristics in common:

A constant fear of death hangs over each. Each thinks he is the only one who has that fear.

These are persons who have suffered heart attacks or who have undergone heart surgery.

The adjustment problems facing these men and women can be very real even if their physicians have told them that their lives can proceed as usual.

But there is a place where they can discover that they are not alone.

It is through a pilot project, a cardiac group rehabilitation program established by the Middlesex County Heart Association.

The therapy sessions are conducted weekly by Louis C. Mone, research director and group therapist for the association and principal psychiatrist.

social worker for the Middlesex County Mental Health Clinic, Perth Amboy.

The program is believed to have been the first of its kind in the United States. Since its formation last August, however, the University of Oklahoma has initiated a similar group.

"A heart attack is a life threatening situation. It conjures up anxiety, depression, a feeling of helplessness. Generally, those who have suffered heart attacks have been very productive persons; suddenly they are incapacitated—in bed—in a hospital. It's an anxious situation," Mone said.

"Many patients do not ask questions of their doctor. They are afraid to air their feelings. They feel they can't talk to anybody."

The cardiac therapy group, Mone said, was formed to direct patients in the problems they have had as a result of their illness—to "get things off their chests," and to enlist patients' ideas on solving problems.

"Usually a heart patient is in the hospital about four weeks and it is usually six to eight weeks before he returns to work. Our sessions are planned for those weeks plus several weeks after he has returned to work."

"The value of the sessions is that patients find that other persons have the same fears, the same troubles, the same problems as themselves. They are not alone anymore. They can return to their families with a new feeling of confidence."

"Relatives and friends don't know how to talk to a patient," Mone said. "The patient realizes he is being pampered which in turn is a constant reminder of his affliction. Patients resent it; it makes them feel helpless and impotent."

"Wives go overboard in protecting the cardiac patient. One man at the session complained that his wife wouldn't let him do anything—not even empty the garbage pails. At the session he aired his problem and relieved the tension which was being built up."

According to Mone tension can build up at home so easily. As one patient said, "At the first session I had here I blew my top about my wife and when I left I did feel better. I got it off my chest."

"I couldn't blow my top at home or to my wife because I'd only get into more of an argument. Blowing it in the sessions made me feel better."

He was not alone. One of the benefits of group therapy they all discover, Mone said, is that the others are experiencing the same problems.

"Just to be listened to, to know that others are interested in them, makes them feel good, worthy, important."

"Once a patient is aware of what is bothering him his anger is reduced. He can communicate his wishes with less emotion, try to let his family know how he's feeling," Mone added.

Sexual intercourse can be a big problem. Because of the tremendous fear of death, often a patient puts more limitations upon himself than the doctor does. The doctor may tell him what he can and cannot do but the patient only hears what he wants to, Mone said.

"If he has a little chest pain while having intercourse, that frightens him. Or else his wife will feel his heart beating harder and immediately get frightened," Mone said.

One patient, in fact said that he was trying to act very cold toward his wife and not get near her because he was afraid, Mone said.

Returning to work is another main problem, especially for the men. There is a big adjustment to make; again they are filled with fears.

"They worry about getting their old job back, about whether they will be able to function as before. Some will have to shift to other jobs. New jobs always cause apprehensions in most persons—to a heart patient it is more pronounced."

"Pretty soon, they have made a mountain out of a molehill. After they talk about it with others in the same category the mountain doesn't seem so big. They are able to look at it more realistically," Mone said.

Paroled Former Lifer Works To Help Others

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — Ted Winters, 44, got into trouble as a youth in Eugene, and then went on to petty thievery and forgery. Six years ago he was sentenced to life in prison for armed robbery.

But recently he was the honored guest at a reception in the office of Gov. Tom McCall, who praised him as an "alert, compassionate man who has a way of being in the right place at the right time."

He was paroled after making a remarkable record of achievement in the prison's work-release plan. In it, prisoners work on regular jobs during the day and return to their cells at night.

Winters said that the last time he went to prison—he had been free 2½ years after 13 years in prison—he realized for the first time that he had hurt someone he loved. While out on parole, he had married a woman with a young son.

He said his sister sent him their photographs and "I looked at those smiling faces and suddenly thought 'This is love, this is God, this is what it's all about.'"

He said that he felt to his knees and prayed. "It was a prayer of surrender."

His attitude was changed and prison officials gradually sensed it. He became the chaplain's assistant.

Former chaplain Neil Concanon said, "Ted had tremendous influence with other prisoners. He could get through to them, make them take hard looks at themselves, convince them that they could—if they really tried—make it on the outside." Winters ters was assigned to Marko Haggard, Gov. McCall's aide, for work-release and Haggard sent him to Portland to work with Tico Walton in the Albina area, where most of Portland's Negroes live. He returned to jail each night and to prison on weekends.

Gov. McCall spoke at the reception of the fine work Winters did with Walton in getting food and fuel to the poor during the severe winter.

Most of his work has to do with hearing complaints from the discouraged, jobless and poor. He follows up with state and other agencies to see that something is done when the complaints warrant it.

Since he was paroled he no longer has to report each night to a cell, where he has spent more than 20 years of his life.

Use Old Bath Mat

Your old bathroom mat can be cut to fit an electric floor or shoe polisher. Just stitch a channel to run elastic through and slip the new cover over the old felt or bristle pads. These covers are easy to remove after each use to machine launder in hot suds.

Clean-Finger Artists

When children are using finger or poster paints, it is helpful to set a bowl of old washcloths wrung from thick suds on the table. This way they can wipe their hands and so spare your walls and bathroom fixtures from fingerprints.

Speaking Softly, Moving Cautiously

Editor's Note — Richard Milhouse Nixon has now been President of the United States for three months, traditionally a time for assessing a new man's impact on the office. In the following article, a veteran White House correspondent examines Nixon's first 90 days.

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — If Richard M. Nixon has developed a personal approach to the presidency in the 90 days he has held the office, it is to speak softly while moving cautiously, indeed slowly, toward any confrontation with crisis.

"We cannot learn from one another," said Nixon in his inaugural address, "until we stop shouting at one another—until we speak quietly enough so that our words can be heard as well as our voices."

Thus did Nixon give notice of the muted style — a dramatic contrast to that of predecessor Lyndon B. Johnson — that has set the official tone of the new Republican administration, from the White House to the last outpost of the capital bureaucracy.

If the cool world of Richard Nixon has failed to generate much excitement, it also can be said to have served effectively as a shock absorber in the jolts of real politics, at home and abroad.

Recently the Nixon administration found itself confronted with a major international incident. It reported a U.S. navy reconnaissance plane, carrying 31 men and loaded with sophisticated electronic surveillance gear, was shot down by North Korean jets over the Sea of Japan.

During the 1968 campaign, candidate Nixon condemned President Johnson's handling of the crisis precipitated by North Korea's seizure of the USS Pueblo, a Navy surveillance ship.

"When respect for the United States of America falls so low that a fourth-rate military power like North Korea will seize an American naval vessel on the high seas, it is time for new leadership," Nixon said then. "I pledge to you the American flag is not going to be a doormat for anybody at home or abroad."

Nonetheless, the Nixon administration reacted outwardly with all deliberate calm when faced for the first time with a strikingly similar situation.

For 29 hours and 51 minutes after the first reports of the incident, the government contented itself with confirming only that one of its planes was missing, while denying North Korean charges that the aircraft had intruded into that country's airspace.

As Nixon prepared to confer with the National Security Council in a meeting scheduled before the incident, word leaked from the State Department that his first official reaction would be a strongly worded protest to North Korea.

After the meeting, the Defense Department confirmed that all available evidence tended to substantiate North Korea's claim that it had shot down the plane, but the Pentagon's 3½-page statement avoided any discussion of political or diplomatic ramifications.

Nixon said nothing until Friday, when he could hardly avoid the issue. Before the plane incident erupted, he had scheduled a news conference for that day and the first question, of course, was what diplomatic and military action he proposed.

Stressing that the plane was on a normal reconnaissance mission that never took it nearer than 40 miles to North Korea, Nixon said the North Koreans knew this from their radar.

"Therefore, this attack was unprovoked," he said. "It was deliberate. It was without warning."

threat; it is simply a statement of fact."

And what of the future? Nixon made no threats, but he kept his options open.

"I do not want to leave the implication that the announcement of the renewal of and the continuation of reconnaissance flights is the final action that can or will be taken here," he said.

"Our action in this matter will be determined by what happens in the future."

Despite the outcome of the Sea of Japan incident, it appears certain that Nixon's policy of avoiding open conflict will soon come to an end.

It becomes easier to believe when you speak to her. The slender, dark-haired young woman with blue-green eyes has intelligence and ability as well as looks and Southern German charm.

She holds a doctorate in law from the university in her home city, Munich, where her widowed mother still lives.

"But don't call me Doctor, please. It sounds like a dentist or something," she smiled.

She was posted here from Tokyo, where she was consul for three years after being stationed in Edinburgh, Scotland. In her six years as a diplomat she has travelled all over the continent, Britain and the Far East and speaks German, English, French, Italian and some Japanese. Next, she would like to go to Israel.

Higher-decibel debate seems certain with the return from Easter holiday of a restive Democratic-controlled Congress. Virtually every Democrat, and many a Republican, can find something displeasing in a revised and reduced federal budget. Still to come, moreover, is the bulk of Nixon's long-awaited domestic legislative program.

Inflation prompted the budget cuts, which Nixon claims will produce a surplus in the coming fiscal year of $5.8 billion—biggest since the Truman administration. Nixon says he's confident a hefty surplus, coupled with more tight money, will halt erosion of the dollar's value. Although the chief executive sees inflation as currently the most acute domestic problem, foreign affairs claimed the greatest part of his attention during the first 90 days. The ratio of National Security Council meetings to sessions of the Nixon-created Council for Urban Affairs, its nearest domestic equivalent, was almost precisely two to one.

This was natural enough since Nixon believes his freedom of movement in the domestic arena will be limited by budgetary stringency until inflation is brought under control, and the country can disengage itself from the Vietnam War.

In his inaugural address, Nixon signaled his intent to put foreign affairs at the top of his agenda:

"The greatest honor history can bestow is the title of peacemaker. This honor now beckons America — the chance to help lead the world at last out of the valley of turmoil and onto that high ground of peace that man has dreamed of since the dawn of civilization. . . . This is our summons to greatness."

Within a few days, Nixon moved on three fronts to stake out a claim as peacemaker, a claim that has yet to be fully worked. But if effort alone means anything—and Nixon has been most free of criticism in the foreign policy area—he did move promptly to develop a still-secret program for ending the Vietnam war, to lay a groundwork for four-power talks that hopefully might hasten a Middle East settlement, and to edge toward eventual talks with the Soviet Union on taking some heat out of the arms race.

Voters must take the Vietnam part of the President's peace strategy on faith. He says he has an end-the-war plan but that to talk about it would destroy its value.

Meanwhile, Richard Nixon is pleased that most Americans seem satisfied, at least for the moment, with his assurance that an end-the-war plan is unfolding in secret, that the South Vietnamese generals say publicly they do not feel direct negotiations with the Viet Cong are out of the question, and that, on the basis of public hints and private "leaks," the United States can foresee a progressive scaling down of American military involvement — regardless of what happens in Paris.

As for the Middle East, Nixon demonstrated his concern during the transition period by dispatching former Gov. William Scranton of Pennsylvania to meet with Israeli officials and their Arab adversaries.

Then he set up bilateral talks between U.S. representatives and their counterparts from the Soviet Union, France and Britain—all with the aim of four-power sessions that now seem assured.

They Never Believe She's A Diplomat

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — To look at her, you wouldn't think she was a diplomat.

Vivacious, attractive Dr. Eleanor Linsmayer, 30, is Johannesburg's German consul and one of only two woman diplomats holding that rank in South Africa.

It becomes easier to believe when you speak to her. The slender, dark-haired young woman with blue-green eyes has intelligence and ability as well as looks and Southern German charm.

She holds a doctorate in law from the university in her home city, Munich, where her widowed mother still lives.

her job landed her in one of the most memorable situations she has been in.

Fighting broke out among sailors aboard a German ship in Tokyo harbor and the German consul was called in to mediate.

"I'm the consul," Dr. Linsmayer told a ship's officer. "And I'm the Queen of England," the impatient officer snapped. "Besides, young girls don't belong on board this ship. The men are making a lot of trouble."

When she insisted on staying, the officer grabbed her and locked her up in a cabin. He telephoned the German consulate, reported he had locked up a troublesome German girl and demanded to know when the consul would arrive.

"You have just locked up the consul," they told him. He spent 20 minutes apologizing to her. Japan taught her one thing, she said. "I learned to wait on men and spoil them, because that is expected of women in Japan."

Drop Personal Property Tax Says Arrington

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Senate Republican Leader W. Russell Arrington proposed Tuesday a sales tax reduction and elimination of personal property taxes as "sweeteners" to Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie's income tax plan.

Arrington said Ogilvie had been told of the change in his revenue program and expressed "no surprise and no opposition."

The GOP leader introduced the 4 per cent income tax bill and one to cut the state sales tax 1 cent to 3½ cents.

He also filed a constitutional amendment seeking a statewide referendum in 1970 on elimination of personal taxes.

Ogilvie previously said he opposed "sweeteners" in order to sell his income tax but it has run into strong opposition from Republican and Democratic legislators.

Arrington said the new package was discussed at a Republican senate caucus and drew "varying attitudes."

If the sales tax is decreased, effective Jan. 1 as proposed, it would slash $130 million in revenue from Ogilvie's budget for the fiscal year starting July 1.

Arrington said the prospective reduction in personal property taxes was $360 million a year. The loss to local governments would have to be made up through state grants beginning in 1971, he said.

"Our task is to pass the income tax bill. Some say it cannot be done. I disagree," Arrington said.

"The people will accept it if they know it is not an add-on tax. Rather, it must be first be demonstrated convincingly that this new tax is being imposed in lieu of raising or extending consumption and property taxes at the state and local levels."

U.N. Group To Study Slavery

By MILTON BESSER
Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United Nations has decided to take another look at slavery—a problem that still plagues mankind despite international efforts to stamp it out.

Eighty nations, including the United States, have signed, acceded to or ratified a supplementary convention on slavery since it was adopted by the U.N. Economic and Social Council in Geneva in September 1956. The League of Nations approved the original convention in 1926.

But this has not eliminated the practice of slavery, which dates back to ancient times, and still affects the lives of thousands of people.

New Study Starts
In recognition of this the U.N. Commission on Human Rights at its meeting in March in Geneva confirmed the appointment of Mohammed Awad, an Egyptian authority on the subject, to carry out a new study of slavery and the slave trade.

Awad will prepare the report for initial scrutiny by a subsidiary body of the Human Rights Commission—the Subcommission on Prevention of Discrimination and Protection of Minorities.

That the institution of slavery still flourishes is a recognized fact. But there is controversy on the extent and the numbers of persons affected.

The Anti-Slavery Society for the Protection of Human Rights, a private organization with headquarters in London, estimates that 10 million humans still live in slavery or other forms of bondage.

Awad in a study released in 1966 put the figure at around one and a quarter million.

Col. Patrick Montgomery, executive secretary of the London-based society, charges that the United Nations has brushed aside a direct confrontation over slavery. He says this is due in part to the sensitivity of some of the newly admitted U.N. member countries toward the issue.

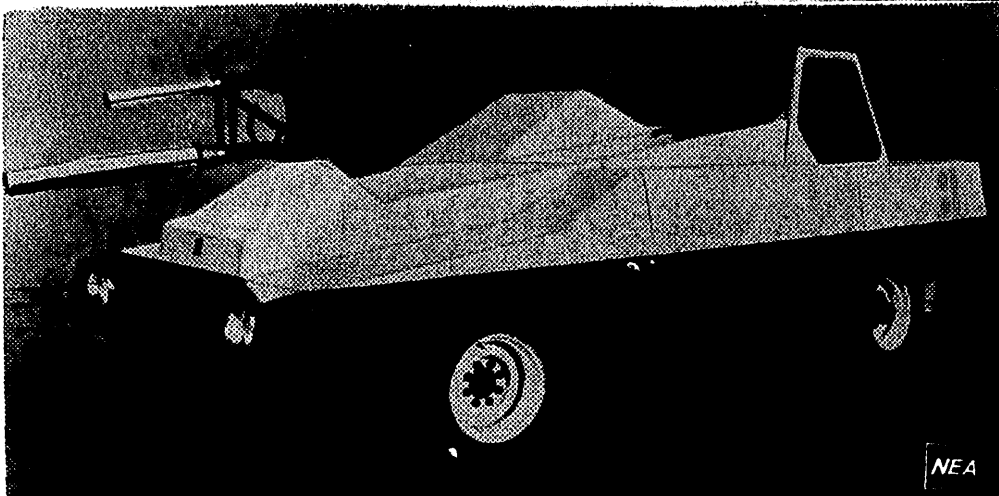

30 Countries with Slavery
While he did not name any specific countries, he said slavery is practiced in about 30 which lie in a belt "stretching all the way around the world between latitude 10 south and 30 north of the equator, starting in Polynesia, all the way through southern Asia, the Persian Gulf, Southern Arabia, central and Saharan Africa, and the high Andes and Amazon forests of South America."

He says that in one African country between 300 and 400 women and girls live in one harem—sold to a chief by those seeking favor from him.

A woman member of the society reported that on a tour in the Middle East she found that young girls were being sold as slaves for 10-year periods at a price of $40 each.

They were regarded by their owner as fortunate to have escaped a future as prostitutes, and were being given excellent care as domestics. Some were sold as young as 8, and assigned immediately to household chores.

MOTORIZED FIRE EXTINGUISHER may prove ideal for highway fire protection because of its great speed and maneuverability. Unveiled recently at Marinette, Wis., the Magnum X-2 was described as the "world's fastest fire truck." The experimental vehicle reportedly accelerates from 0 to 60 miles an hour in 11 seconds and attains speeds in excess of 100 miles an hour. Tanks containing its extinguishing agents are incorporated as parts of the frame.

Here's How

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

What does that exotic resort have that your backyard doesn't have? Compute! The answer may provide the key to one big happy vacation at home or lots of jazzy weekends.

First, feed your imaginary computer a backyard image. Start with the fixed blessings — the glorious colors of the summer sky, bright sunshine, warm air, water spot — swimming pool or fish pond.

Next, feed the resort image into the machine, watch it digest and come up with two words: color and people. That's what you probably lack. A bit more sociability on your part and buckets of colorful pigment may turn your backyard into an irresistible hangout.

Color used lavishly on furniture, screen fences, concrete floors, umbrellas, awnings, along with wild, wonderful patterns will give you a new outlook. However, the color scheme should be well thought out or the effect might be garish.

If you don't trust yourself, consult color experts at stores or seek the good judgment of a friend. Two solid colors or one solid and a pattern work out best in a small place.

Here are suggestions: Inexpensive peel-cane furniture, director's chairs, pine chairs can soak up the vivid colors — lime, orange, blue, pink or the deep red and burgundy or pastels — for a very modern look.

If you have a stockade-type fence enclosing your backyard, paint your side of the enclosure. Bright white is a good background color for vividly painted outdoor furniture. If outdoor furniture is white, paint the fence the same bright color as chair cushions or umbrellas.

If the yard is dirt, you may put down an outdoor carpet. If there is concrete or flagstone, paint it in attractive colors. Vivid pink or blue chalky colors are pretty choices, if you want to do it up Bermuda-style. Fill in chips and cracks, prime concrete with an alkali-resistant base coat before you begin. Your husband and the paint store man will try to discourage you, and one argument is that such colors won't last. So what? A Caribbean vacation doesn't last either, and it is far more expensive than a paint job. When the paint fades, do it again.

Barrels or nail kegs are good containers for plants or trees. A row of them placed along a wall or fence can be very pretty. Yellow barrels contrast nicely to a white fence.

Several round tables that can be painted white and shaded with colorful umbrellas that match chair cushions will go a long way toward increasing that resort feeling. Some families may prefer picnic tables, but benches can be a bit uncomfortable for party-dressed people who want to linger around a table, and the mood isn't the same.

Travel posters on your patio enclosure will deepen the vacation mood.

Carry out the resort color scheme to your wardrobe, just as you do when you go to the Caribbean. Don't ruin the exotic setting by wearing jeans and a tired checked blouse.

MRS. BROCKHOUSE HEADS SLATE OF CONCORD CLUB

The Concord Domestic Art club met Wednesday, April 23, at the home of Mrs. Walter Standley with a potluck luncheon. Mrs. Delmar Redmon gave the invocation.

Mrs. Ray Nickel presided at the afternoon meeting, which opened with devotions by Miss Dorothy Trent. Twelve members and one guest, Mrs. Fred Standley, were present. The minutes were read and Mrs. W. A. Martin gave the treasurer's report. Reports were given on the county and District Federation meetings.

The nominating committee presented the following slate of officers: president, Mrs. Warren Brockhouse; vice president, Mrs. Virgil Wegehoff; secretary, Mrs. Walter Standley; treasurer, Mrs. W. A. Martin. The slate was elected unanimously.

Plans were made for the lunch to be served Memorial Day at Morgan Hall. Mrs. Dale Brainer announced the May luncheon would be at the Ke-La-Su Marina at Florence on May 28.

Mrs. Fred Standley presented the program on the life and works of Stephen Foster. The hostess read an article on the history of the Methodist churches in this area.

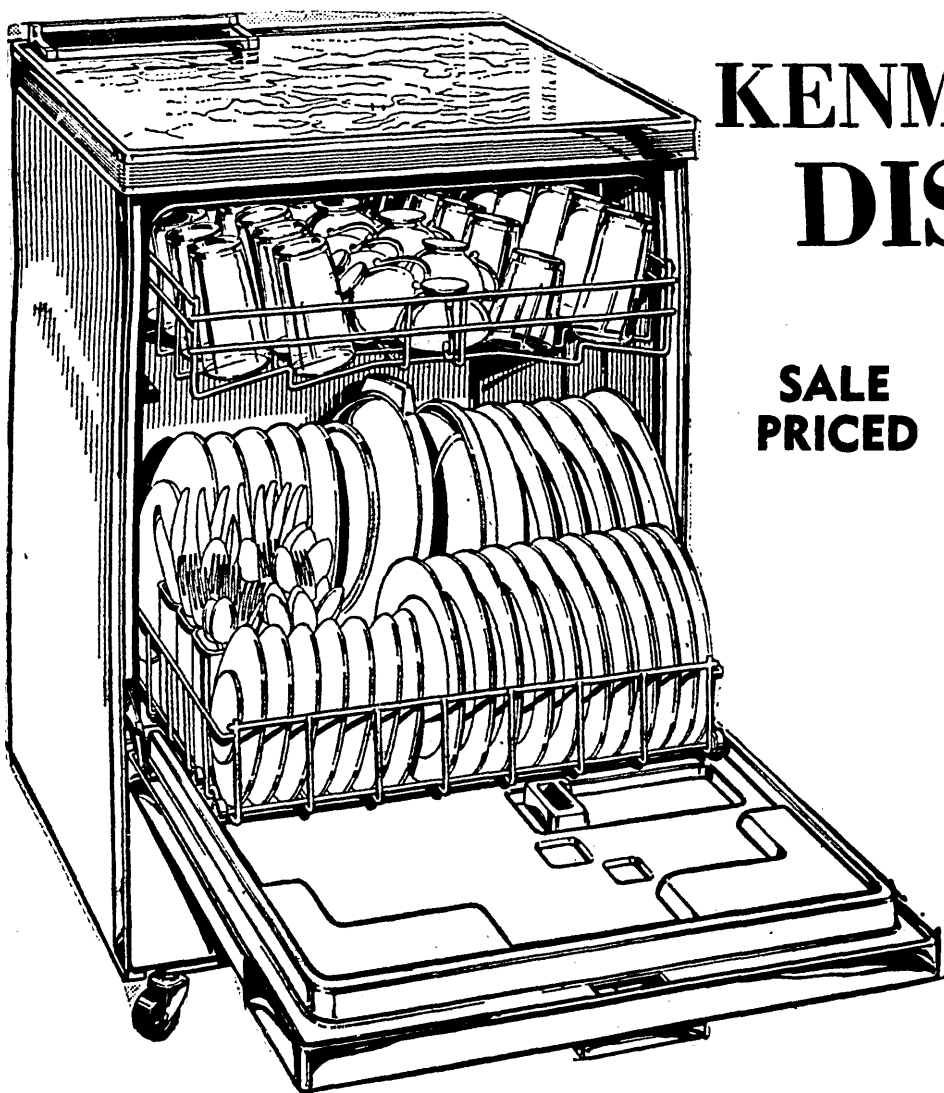

The meeting closed with the club prayer. Members present were Mrs. Carl Bourn, Mrs. Brockhouse, Mrs. Bertha Bayless, Mrs. Nellie Newton, Mrs. Ray Nickel, Mrs. W. A. Martin, Mrs. Delmar Redmon, Mrs. Robert Schall, Mrs. Virgil Wegehoff, Miss Dorothy Trent and the hostess, Mrs. Walter Standley.

Schuyler Watershed Plans Ready To Go

WASHINGTON — Construction on the Coal and Crane Creek Watershed Project in Schuyler County, Illinois, is scheduled to start this summer, according to U.S. Representative Paul Findley.

Individual farmers within the 40,200-acre watershed are already applying conservation measures. These practices will reduce erosion and sediment damage. The U.S. Soil Conservation Service estimates that damages from floods, erosion and sediment in this watershed average $60,000 annually.

The completed project will reduce this damage by 80 percent. In addition, benefits from municipal water supply and recreation will total $18,700 yearly.

The total project calls for 15 sediment control and floodwater retarding dams. This summer's construction will be on several smaller dams.

"We've obtained land rights for construction of three dams and we're making good progress with land rights on the other structures," said James Cooper.

Cooper is farm manager for a large acreage of land within the watershed and also works for the Coal and Crane Creek drainage districts to obtain land rights for the watershed project.

The Coal Creek Drainage District, Crane Creek Drainage District, the City of Rushville and the Schuyler Soil and Water Conservation District are sponsors of the project.

Municipal Water Supply Findley said, "The primary purpose of small watershed projects is to reduce flood and erosion damage." However, many communities benefit by enlarging watershed lakes for city water supply.

City officials at Rushville are planning to develop one of the proposed lakes in the Coal and Crane project for municipal water supply. The lake will store 2,100-acre feet of water, two miles south of Rushville. Rushville will pay about $136,000 toward the development of this lake, and the federal government will pay $119,000.

Rushville has also bought 155 acres of land around the proposed lake. The city will develop this land for a park.

McKee Creek Plans Findley said good progress is also being made on another western Illinois project. Local leaders in Brown, Adams and Pike counties are developing a plan for the North Fork of McKee Creek Watershed.

The Soil Conservation Service has surveyed each of the 20 proposed sites for floodwater retarding dams. Four of these lakes will be developed as multiple-purpose reservoirs. This means they will provide flood control plus municipal or recreation water storage.

The towns of Columbus, Coatsburg, Paloma, Fowler and Golden are interested in developing a proposed 715-acre reservoir for water supply and recreation. Mt. Sterling wants to develop a 285-acre reservoir for municipal water supply and recreation. Clayton also plans to develop a lake for water supply.

In addition, the State of Illinois has expressed interest in co-sponsoring a proposed lake near Siloam Springs State Park for recreation.

The state hopes to include this lake and some additional land in its plans for enlarging the park.

Findley said another benefit from the project will be the replacement of nine older highway bridges. The Brown and Adams county highway departments and the watershed sponsors are planning to locate nine of the dams so that roads can be built on top of the dams.

It is cheaper to build a road on top of a dam than it is to build a new bridge. The lakes will also create scenic road-sides for motorists.

Accountants Critical Of Easy Licensing

A bill in an Illinois House committee would permit anyone who works as an accountant for one year to perform the same services as a certified public accountant.

Thirteen members of the committee on registration and regulation, where the bill has been referred, sponsored the legislation which by implication would repeal the basic provisions of the public accountancy law.

The proposed legislation, in effect, would permit two groups of public accountants to perform identical services. Both could perform audits and express opinions on financial statements.

The all-inclusive "grandfather clause" in House bill 1321 permits anyone to secure an accountant's license who for one year has "held himself out to the public as an accountant" or has held for two years "an accounting or auditing position with the government of the United States," or was in the armed forces on the effective date of the act and "held himself out to the public as an accountant."

The Illinois Society of Certified Public Accountants has registered strong objection.

The society alleges it would create hopeless confusion by permitting duplicate services to be performed by two groups of public accountants, would lower the general level of accounting services, and reflects a need for a second class of accountants which really doesn't exist.

The society notes that the C.P.A. examination in Illinois is open to all persons who take the time and trouble to satisfy the educational requirements.

Disabled Worker Should Call SS Soon As Possible

If a worker becomes disabled before age 65, he should contact the social security office as soon as possible. That's the advice of H. J. Vasconcelles, district manager of the Springfield social security office. Prompt filing will help assure that any benefits due will be delivered on time.

The work credit required for a disabled worker to get benefits depends upon his age when his disability began. If he becomes disabled before age 24, the worker needs social security work credit for 1½ years in the three years before he became disabled. Between age 24 and 31, a disabled worker would need work credits for half the time after age 21 and the date he became disabled. To get disability benefits if he became disabled at age 31 or later, he must have credit for five years of work in the ten years just before he became disabled.

A worker is considered disabled for social security benefits if he has a severe impairment which prevents him from working and which is expected to last for at least 12 months. The amount of the disabled worker's benefit is the same as the benefit he would receive had he reached 65 when he became disabled.

If you are disabled, get in touch with the Springfield social security office. The office is located at 528 South Fifth street and is open Monday through Thursday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. and on Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. The telephone number is 525-4000.

In Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

Associated Press Writer HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Straight men don't often get to take bows, and that's why Jack Albertson's Oscar win gave Hollywood a special glow of satisfaction.

Through vaudeville, burlesque, radio, Broadway show "Top Banana" and television, Albertson played straight, feeding lines to Bert Lahr, Milton Berle, Jack Benny and other comics.

"Even in pictures I always played the Phil Silvers' role 'Blinkie,' the hero's best friend," he recalls.

That changed with "The Subject Was Roses." Frank Gilroy saw Albertson in the old play "Burlesque" at UCLA and decided he was the man to play the hokey, tightwad father in Gilroy's new play. The result: a Tony on Broadway and an Oscar for best supporting actor of 1968.

Pixy-faced Albertson seems still dazed by the events of earlier this month. He recalled that he slept two hours on Oscar night, then reported the next morning for a "Gunsmoke" segment.

The aftermath of the award has been understandably gratifying. Wires from fellow producers. Scripts from eager producers. The money offers have been gratifying, too.

"I signed to do a television feature for Aaron Spelling at more money for a five-day job than I used to earn in a year," the actor remarked. "I made 'The Subject Was Roses' for $20,000. Now my salary has doubled or tripled. Yeah, tripled, easy."

Small wonder Albertson was in tears when he thanked playwright Gilroy at the Oscarcast. But for him, Jack would still be playing straight man.

"Frank blew one play deal after another because he insisted on me for 'The Subject Was Roses,'" said the actor. "The backers kept telling him, 'Albertson won't bring a nickel in to the box office.'"

"Finally I said, 'Frank, they don't want me—give up.' But he still wouldn't quit until he got the play with me in it.

"It was the same with the picture. Frank insisted that I had to play it. He also wanted complete autonomy, and that made signing a picture deal very difficult. But when Pat Neal came in with us, everything was much easier, and the deal was signed with MGM."

Albertson has been around long enough to know that he shouldn't price himself out of a career, as some Oscar winners have done. Nor is he insisting on starring roles. "In my next picture, 'Rabbit run,' there are five bigger parts than mine," he said.

OGILVIE HONORARY SAVINGS BONDS STATE CHAIRMAN

Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy today named Governor Richard B. Ogilvie as Honorary State Chairman of the U.S. Savings Bonds Committee for Illinois.

In State Capitol acceptance ceremonies the Governor received the Secretary's official appointment certificate from Clarence S. Sochowski, State Director for Illinois of the United States Savings Bond Division.

Governor Ogilvie responded by stating that "Today, more than ever before, the purchase of U.S. Savings Bonds and Freedom Shares is vital to the financial well-being of our citizens and it is equally important in maintaining the economic stability of the nation. Systematic savings by the families of our state can only generate future purchasing power that is sure to benefit the welfare of our communities and counties and, ultimately, our country. I gladly accept Secretary Kennedy's appointment, and I pledge him in return that we shall work diligently to advance the practice of regular thrift habits through Savings Bonds and Freedom Shares in our great state of Illinois."

Presenting the certificate at the request of Secretary Kennedy, State Director Sochowski expressed his appreciation of the Governor's leadership of the State Savings Bonds mission, adding that "the Savings Bonds program in Illinois is certain to gain new momentum because of the Governor's active support."

At the time of his appointment Governor Ogilvie issued a proclamation designating the month of May as "Share in America" month in Illinois and urged all employees of the state to enroll in the payroll savings plan for the regular purchase of Savings Bonds and Freedom Shares.

Clean Teens---Hurrah!

By BETTY CANARY
I believed it when I was told about 30,000 teen-agers meeting in Miami. After all, what's strange about having a few of them left over after the Easter holidays? When a reporter who covered the event told me the kids were carrying signs and placards, I said, "What else is new?" But when he said the signs were printed, "Down with Obscenity," then all my suspicions were confirmed. I knew all along the entire teen-aged population in the United States was not on dope, off school or oversexed.

"Tell me about it," I urged. He tried to explain. "I work for Lust Magazine. I took my camera to the meeting. I wanted to get pictures when the kids tore up the stadium. I could see the caption I'd write about orange flames over the Orange Bowl."

"But they didn't burn it!" He shook his head in despair. "I didn't even get a shot of some kid painting four-letter words on a wall."

"I can see what this could do to your career," I said. "I set up a tape recorder because they were making a lot of noise yelling and stomping; but when I played it back, I realized it sounded as if they were merely having fun!"

"Nobody yelling dirty words?"

"At first I figured they were a bunch of squares and I knew I could get some good copy out of that," he said.

"You mean, make fun of them and talk about how their mothers must have been frightened by Andy Hardy movies?"

"That's the idea. But it didn't work out. They didn't make obscene gestures toward my camera but they weren't squares at all. Some of them even had beards! And you should have seen the mini-skirts."

"They sound modern enough," I said happily.

"They call themselves the Clean Teens."

"I've heard about them. Actually, I have believed in them even when others said I was making them up," I said.

"They didn't hang a college professor in effigy..."

"Imagine!"

"...and they even listened to a speech on patriotism."

"Good heavens!"

"I've even had a few alarmists telling me there will be more rallies in the future."

"That's right. Some have been held and others are scheduled around the country."

"If it keeps up, I'll be out of a job."

"But you could write other things," I consoled him. "You could write about kids who believe they can be modern AND modest. You can take pictures of the ones with clean hair and shiny morals."

He hung his head and whispered, "I don't understand it. Have we been invaded? Did they come from outer space?"

Sometimes I can be completely heartless. I told him they had been here all along.

Australian Painter Novice Monk In Japan

By PETER T. SUM
Associated Press Writer
KOYA, Japan (AP) — Barry Gazzard of Australia who came to Japan to study painting, has become the first non-Asian to study to become a monk in the ancient Shingon Buddhist sect.

"Japanese painting is very closely associated with religion," explained Gazzard, 32, after his head was shaved and he began 40 austere days as a novice monk in the Kongoji Temple on Mount Koya, southwest of Tokyo.

The Shingon—"true word"—sect claims a history of more than 1,000 years and a membership in Japan of 2.5 million.

The sect approves of married monks and Gazzard said his Japanese wife, Sunao, would become a member of the sect in September.

Sunao married Gazzard in the picturesque former Japanese capital of Kyoto in March 1968. She was present at the Kongoji Temple when an abbot shaved her husband's hair.

Gazzard was given the Buddhist name of Jiyu, which means "to melt into benevolence."

"I've been studying the sacred teachings of Buddhism for several years now and I feel that the time has come for me to become a monk to learn the rituals and ceremonies of the religion," Gazzard told an interviewer.

Gazzard said he did not belong to any religion before deciding to embrace Buddhism. He said he decided to become a monk to "return to purity."

Gazzard, a graduate of Chelsea Art University, London, came to Japan in 1965 to study Japanese painting.

He said his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Percy G. Gazzard of Sydney, Australia, plan to visit Japan for a reunion with him.

What did they think of his decision to become a Buddhist monk?

"They seemed to be pleased," said Gazzard.

Hess' Future Looks Dim; Coffin, Trimmings Await

BERLIN (AP) — Inside Spandau Prison there is a coffin and a Luftwaffe captain's flying suit, complete with swastika, helmet and boots. Both belong to Rudolf Hess, the World War II ally's $200,000-a-year prisoner and one of the loneliest men on earth.

Hitler's deputy fuhrer won't talk about the day he wore the flying suit or his mysterious political past. His chance of being freed is slim. All that seems to be left is the waiting coffin.

The former No. 2 Nazi was 75 last week. It is his 23rd year in prison, his third in virtual solitary confinement. But the man who has never renounced Adolf Hitler shows no sign of breaking.

Hess' shoulders are stooped, but his 6-foot, 160-pound frame moves briskly with a soldier's gait on his daily walks in the prison yard. His once-black hair has receded. His bushy eyebrows are flecked with gray, covering deep-set, piercing blue eyes.

Hess' voice is still firm, and he is said to be fully conscious of the significance of his position as a lone prisoner held captive by the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union in a prison built for 660 men. He costs the Big Four $200,000 a year.

Weather permitting, Hess walks in the garden of the 19th century prison mornings and afternoons. He has worn a rut in the open space, which measures 40 yards wide and 125 yards long.

It is possible to tell when Hess will make his walks by the birds, his only companions. Twice a day crows, pigeons and songbirds of many hues wait for the old man to arrive bearing a paper bag of crumbs.

He has only his guards to talk to, many of whom have been in Spandau as long as him. Hess talks mainly about three things: his health, prison conditions and the weather. He has been known to curse "this rotten German climate" and talk of the sun and warmth of Alexandria, Egypt, where he was born on April 26, 1884.

The soldiers who guard Hess dislike the duty because it is lonely, boring and, in winter, bitterly cold. The guarding nations at Spandau alternate each month. In April it is always the Americans' turn, and Hess usually receives a cake on his birthday. During the American month he also is said to get pretty much what he wants in the way of books, cigarettes and brandy.

Informed sources said the U.S. commandant in Berlin, Maj. Gen. Robert G. Ferguson, has suggested that Hess be given a television set, but other sources said it is unlikely the Russians will agree to this. They have rejected past requests that he be given a radio or a dog.

An authoritative source said the Western allies have tried "at least 10 times" to get Hess released on humanitarian grounds, but the Russians adamantly refused each time.

In May 1941, Hess parachuted into Scotland. He never fully explained that mission, but apparently he had the notion he could end the war by convincing the British they could never win.

At the Nuernberg war crimes trial, Hess was sentenced to life imprisonment for plotting against the peace and for inciting and carrying out aggressive war. Ten other top Nazis were hanged on similar charges. Hermann Goering escaped the gallows by suicide, and six defendants received varying prison terms.

All the others sent to Spandau have been released because of bad health or because they committed their sentences. Albert Speer and Baldur von Schirach were the last to go, on Sept. 30, 1966.

Hess reportedly quarreled with the other prisoners when they were there, insisting he was the top-ranking man although his prison uniform carried the number 7. But as Speer and von Schirach prepared to leave, they paid more and more attention to him, trying to make his entry into solitary confinement easier. There is little doubt that Hess appreciated this.

Now he takes his aloof walks and devours the daily West and East Berlin newspapers he gets, weighing the political events that might affect his chances of freedom.

But a Soviet Embassy spokesman in East Berlin, asked if some day he might be released, answered curtly: "What for?"

Thumbprint Cookies Fine For Children

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
Ever since Great Grandma's time, kids have doted on thumb-print cookies. Those are the cookies that require you to roll dough into small balls and indent with your thumb. Then a sweet filling is spooned into the "thumbprint."

Originally the dough was vanilla flavored and the filling was currant jelly. But different days bring different ways. So here's a new recipe for thumbprint cookies — peanut-butter dough holding raisin-date filling. We found these cookies on the deliciously crisp side and the young tasters at our house thoroughly enjoyed them.

Peanut Butter Thumbprints
3 cups unsifted flour, stir to aerate before measuring 1 teaspoon baking soda
¾ pound (1½ sticks) butter or margarine
¾ cup peanut butter
¾ cup granulated sugar
¾ cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
2 eggs
Raisin-date Filling, see recipe below

In a medium mixing bowl, thoroughly stir together the flour and baking soda.
In a large mixing bowl cream the butter, peanut butter and sugars. Add eggs; beat until blended. Gradually stir in flour mixture until blended. Chill if necessary before shaping.

Using level tablespoons of the dough, shape into balls. Place two inches apart on ungreased cookie sheets. With the thumb, indent the center of each ball, making the indentation fairly wide. Spoon a rounded half-teaspoon of the Raisin-Date Filling into each indentation.

Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until golden brown — about 12 minutes. With a wide spatula remove to wire racks to cool. Store in a covered cookie jar or tin box.

Makes about five dozen.
Raisin-Date Filling
¾ cup raisins
¾ cup chopped pitted dates, not packed down
½ cup water
2 tablespoons lemon juice

Into a small saucepan turn all the ingredients. Cook gently, stirring occasionally, until thick — about 10 minutes.

Seemingly dry earth conceals more fresh water than there is in all the nation's rivers, ponds, reservoirs and lakes, including the Great Lakes.

Alumni
The annual banquet and dance of the Greenfield High School Alumni Association will be held Saturday evening, May 31. President Charles Williams held an officers meeting at his home last week to make plans for the event. Officers are Paul Weber of Carrollton, vice president; Linda Elmore Rives, treasurer; and Janet Andrews Morrow, secretary. Members of the 1919 and 1944 classes will also be honored with the 1969 class. Invitations will soon be mailed and reservations will be accepted by the secretary.

Computer Art

In addition to producing contour maps, various kinds of flow charts, market research graphs and the like, the computer-plotter can be used to create art. To prove this and to "humanize" computer-plotter technology, California Computer Products sponsored an international contest which attracted hundreds of entries from all over the world. First-place winner was Gordon Hines, 25, of Toronto, Canada. Hines, right, checks the felt-tip marker and watches while the plotter produces a copy of his award-winning composition "Cross," bottom right.

"Five-story Pagoda," above left, was a runner-up contribution by Kaoru Nakano of the University of Tokyo. In creating plotter art, a programmer first determines which combination of mathematical formulas for certain geometrical figures will produce a desired design. The formulas, which may be distorted for artistic effect, are fed into a large-scale computer. After thousands of calculations, the computer sends a set of drawing instructions to the plotter. The plotter, a mechanical arm holding a pen, moves horizontally and vertically across a sheet of paper according to the instructions of the computer tape until the drawing is completed.

Women Abroad Clean The 'Old World Way'

NEW YORK (AP) — Young married women who complain that housekeeping tires them would be grateful for their lot if they visited Europe and the Middle East, observes Susan Peterson of Watersmeet, Mich. Housewives abroad are still using Old World cleaning methods, says Susan, who has returned from a 25,000 mile tour that surveyed cleaning methods of other lands. She visited Italy, France, England, Lebanon and Germany for a manufacturer of cleaning equipment and chemicals and is on a 31-city tour to tell American women about her discoveries.

She found the standby rug cleaner is the old-fashioned beater. "They clean the rug, tapestry, draperies with beaters and then use home cleaning methods to finish the job. Some beat the rugs and then clean them only once every few years."

She suspects that some people are using primitive sand, water and sun methods for cleaning. At Blenheim Palace in England the maintenance comptroller explained that the Duke of Marlborough's famous tapestry, the Battle of Blenheim, was cleaned in a river in Scotland. Every four or five years, the duke takes it to the mountain stream and lets the river water run through it for several days. In Lebanon one cleaning method utilizes the root of the panama tree. The root is pulverized with stone, mixed with hot water and rubbed into the fibers. To bring out the color, they use a weak tea solution. Rugs are dried on roofs.

In Italy one housewife cleaned a rug with petrol while another used warm water and vinegar. Some treated rugs with ammonia and rolled them up. In France and England they cleaned rugs only when it was absolutely necessary, every few years.

Susan talked easy-cleaning to some women, but they were highly suspicious of modern methods, she says. Men, too. One Englishman compared cleaning a rug with the regular dry cleaning of clothes—it would break down the rug fibers, he said.

She explained that rug shampoos are detergents and can't really hurt a rug, that dirt particles weaken fibers and should be loosened before they can work their way down so deep you can't get to them, and that rug shampoos can remove dog hairs and the like which can't be removed easily with the vacuum cleaner.

Many people don't like the brightness that comes with rejuvenation of an old rug.

In Italy, Dr. Mario Barea, tapestry and rug restorer makes a secret formula solution that is used to clean old tapestries and rugs. He experimented with an American rug shampoo on an old tapestry rug. It restored the rug to its original color and brilliance, but the owner was horrified when he saw it, Barea told Susan. He had to use another special solution to restore the rug's antique appearance.

The cleanest homes were in England and Germany, she says, but the desire for clean homes is international. It's just that other countries are not so readily exposed to cleaning items or so willing to accept new ideas.

Flood Stoppage Called Successful By Engineers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The crest of the spring's snowmelt moved Tuesday past Keithsburg, Ill., safely contained by man-made barriers despite what some observers have called Mississippi River's second great runoff on record.

The Army Corps of Engineers said Operation Foresight — the construction of new dikes and the strengthening and raising of old levees in anticipation of the flood — probably will prevent further damage along the nation's largest river.

A spokesman said the nearly simultaneous arrival of the crests of the Mississippi and its tributary, the Missouri, at the latter's mouth just above St. Louis late this week would not affect this assessment.

The widening of the main stream there, he said, would easily accommodate the Missouri's discharge.

Except around St. Louis and some points above Minneapolis, Minn., the Mississippi was still in flood stage from Cape Girardeau, Mo., to Libby, Minn., on the headwaters west of Duluth — roughly 700 river miles.

The overflow largely has been on low-lying farmlands or areas where the potential flood loss was too small to justify expensive protection.

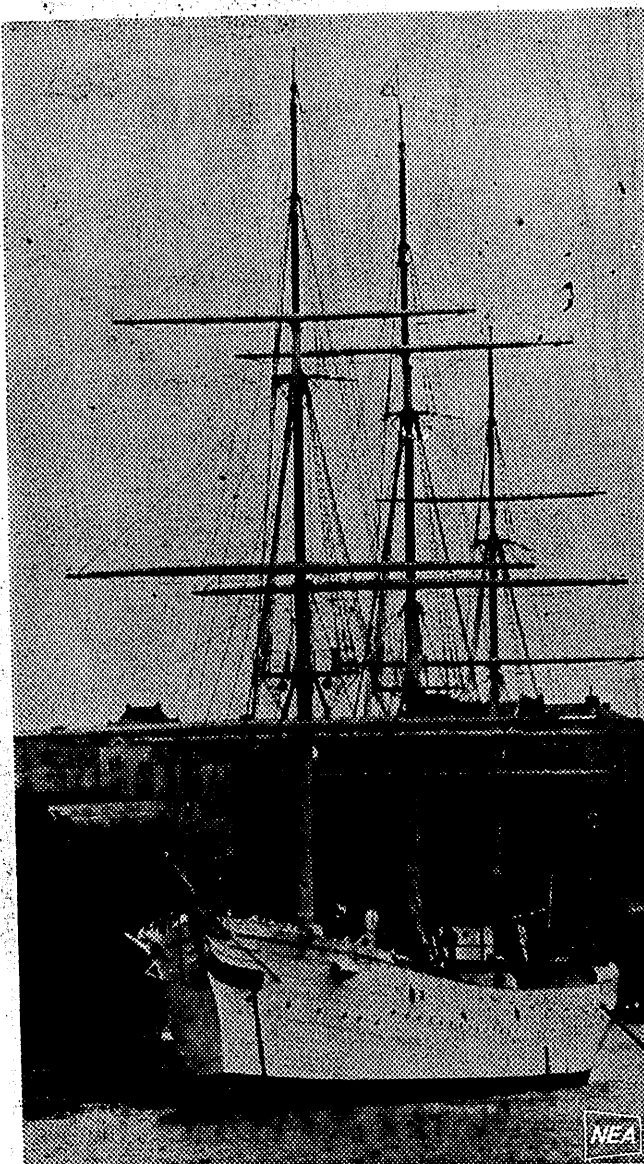

The main concern now, the Army Engineers spokesman said, is continuing vigilance against failure of water-soaked dikes until Mississippi and tributary waters drop back into their banks.

Two northward flowing rivers receded only slightly — the Souris which soaked about one-third of Minot, N.D., and the Red, which formed a 150-mile lake along the North Dakota-Minnesota border.

It may take three weeks for them to return to their banks.

Say Records Influences Of Country, Nostalgia

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

A couple of the strains influential in pop music at present are country and nostalgia. There's also blues—but we'll take that up another day.

Among the good new albums with a country influence is Hoyt Axton's "My Griffin Is Gone," on Columbia. Axton has a gentle country sound, something like the folk-country of John Hartford—a clear country voice, without twang.

There's a drone instrument on here, adding a bit of an India effect. "On the Natural" is a decision to go to Colorado and leave the hangups of the city; other songs deal with madness, dope, a plea not to be living in vain, a dream of sunshine fields of love with a slow, interesting melody.

Axton wrote all these songs. They're contemporary, varied and have that "in" country flavor.

"Pop Stoneman Memorial Album," on MGM, made of video tapes plus four tracks from previous albums, comes out nearly a year after the head of the Stoneman family died in Nashville of cancer. The family joins in on the refrain of some songs.

First song, appropriately, is "Blue Ridge Mountain Blues." There's also "Corrina," a couple of religious songs, the funny "The Mountaineer's Courtship" and "The Birds Are Returning," which Pop introduced by saying he learned it 60 years ago.

Everybody knows what Glen Campbell sounds like, and he has a new LP out, "Galveston," on Capitol. Of course it includes the title tune, his latest single hit, and another good one by Jim Webb, "Where's the Playground, Susie?" Webb's songs have an oblique rightness, like a cup perfectly balancing on its rim, and Campbell does them full justice. He wrote a couple of the songs he sings on this album, proving he's no Jim Webb, but then of course nobody else is.

Kelly Gordon, who wrote the tune to Frank Sinatra's hit song "That's Life," and has produced records, now sings his first, "Defunked," an LOP on Capitol. (It happens to all writers: they're leaning on Jim Webb to sing, too.)

Gordon wrote tunes for eight of the 10 songs on here, lyrics for three of the eight. The four songs on side one go on too long and the effect is monotonous, although "Teeny Boppin' Child" is a good song. Gordon's down-home voice isn't very exciting, either, which doesn't help.

Shorty Rogers arranged and conducts and the band and voices almost drown Gordon out a good deal of the time. Better luck next time, Kelly, or back to the writing board.

Another new musical sound in demand is actually more than 30 years old—the nostalgic pop music of the '30s. In New York, "Dames at Sea," an off-broadway hit takeoff on Busby Berkeley movie musicals, is more good imitation than camp parody.

So who starred in the real Busby Berkeley movies? Often it was Dick Powell and Ruby Keeler. And Columbia has issued a two-LP set, "Dick Powell in Hollywood (1933-35)," which includes every Dick Powell track—29—that the company owns. They originally were issued as 78s. A filter has been used to take out surface noise making reproduction marvelous. No echo has been added. Powell is so mellow your memories can melt in his voice.

FISH HARVEST calls for a large seine. As a means of making extra money, many Southern farmers have taken to raising their own kettle of catfish in man-made ponds right on their farms. It is predicted that 1,800 farmers will try their hand this year, adding from $70 to $250 an acre to their annual income.

Protests Halt Construction At Bradley

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — The president of Bradley University said all work on a university construction project will be halted Wednesday pending discussions with the contractor and Negro students who allege job discrimination.

Talman W. Van Arsdale Jr., the president, said during a meeting with newsmen Tuesday that the contractor, the O. Frank Heinz Construction Co., has agreed to shut down construction.

A group of about 90 members of the Black Students Alliance picketed the project in a protest against what they felt were discriminatory membership practices of unions.

Van Arsdale said the Negroes feel that existing employment of Negroes on the construction job is only "tokenism."

"But the main difficulty is that the university has a contract for the construction and the contractor could seek substantial damages from the university if it shut down construction," Van Arsdale said.

Van Arsdale said the situation is regrettable and the trouble lies with the students and the unions. He said the unions would not meet with the students, agreeing only to meet with the president of the university and the board of trustees.

A meeting of the board of trustees is scheduled for Wednesday to discuss the situation further, Van Arsdale said.

SINGAPORE SWINGS at night. Entertaining sightseers, Malay dancers like this one move in figures—as in square dancing—with music which embodies Western influences, probably brought by Portuguese traders.

MRS. JONES HOSTS EBENEZER WSCS

The WSCS of Ebenezer United Methodist church met at the home of Mrs. Harold Cully on Thursday, April 24, with Mrs. Paul Jones and Miss Beulah Dyer assisting.

The president Mrs. Everett Hymes conducted the business meeting. Mrs. John Hadden gave the program, "The New Prophets as Responsible Citizens," assisted by Mrs. Robert Houston, Mrs. Charles Brainer and Mrs. Ben Cully.

The minutes and two communications from Miss Ruby Deweese and Mrs. Farrell Hansmeier were read. Mrs. Robert Houston gave the treasurer's report. After some discussion, Mrs. Paul Jones made a motion to have a bakeless bake sale, donations to be given at the meeting May 29.

The School of Missions will be held June 23-27 in Bloomington. The nominating committee, Mrs. Charles Brainer, Mrs. Robert Houston and Mrs. Sylvester Reeves, will report at the May meeting. Thank offering day will be Sunday, May 25.

The spiritual message was given by Mrs. Sherwood Eddy. Guests present were Rev. George Miller, Miss Elsie Cully, Mrs. Wilson Henderson and Mrs. Edward Scott.

A social hour followed the meeting with refreshments being served by the hostesses.

Recent Evidence Points To Water On Moon Surface

WASHINGTON (AP) — A space scientist said Monday recently acquired evidence of massive concentrations of denser material beneath the moon's surface has revived a theory that the moon once had large oceans with beaches.

Dr. Paul M. Muller said also the new-found evidence increases the possibility that significant quantities of water in the form of trapped, subsurface ice still may be present beneath the lunar landscape.

Declaring he and other scientists plan to try to get the space agency to explore this possibility, Muller said the discovery of recoverable water on the moon would mean "you could make your own rocket fuel right on the moon—and build a self-sufficient lunar base... at a cost the world could economically afford."

Muller, of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory of California Institute of Technology, made the comments at a news conference at the spring meeting of the American Physical Society.

He said the possibilities of there having been a very watery moon some 3.5 billion to 4.5 billion years ago, and persistence of some surface water even now, arise from recently acquired evidence of so-called "mascons" at different spots beneath the moon's surface. Muller said he and some other scientists believe they are water-deposited sediments akin to earthly garden soil.

These mascons, rated by Muller as being up to 300 miles in diameter and five miles thick, exhibit a stronger gravity pull than other areas of the moon.

Eye Tests Urged

NEW YORK (AP) — The Society for Visual Care is spearheading a campaign to make eye examinations everywhere in the United States mandatory for the child entering school, to make these eye exams mandatory thereafter as followups and to insure that the examinations are given by a professional in the eye field.

To date only the state of Michigan makes eye examinations for the pre-school child mandatory.

Dr. Alden N. Haffner, who is advisory board chairman of the society feels that eye examinations must be given by a professional because the Snellen charts ordinarily used are outmoded, do not indicate many eye inadequacies—i.e. both eyes acting in concert, depth, etc. Also he claims that the child can memorize these eye charts.

The professional in the eye field uses the Snellen eye charts but supplements it with his own knowledge of specific eye failings and with added devices designed for these purposes.

Unnecessary Fatigue Is All Around Us

NEW YORK (AP) — Did you realize that sitting in a low chair and having to raise your arms frequently can cause fatigue that reduces your effectiveness at work?

Did you know cramped shoes or any other type of tight-fitting clothing also can cause unnecessary fatigue?

Dr. Erwin R. Tichauer says that low chairs, tight shoes and hundreds more subtle threats like that lead to fatigue and other problems that hinder a person at work.

He is studying these factors at New York University's Safety Center in what he says is the nation's largest application of biomechanics—the study of body responses to outside forces—to the problems of safety and health.

Spurred by a number of product liability and worker compensation legal actions, industry is showing an interest in biomechanics, Tichauer said. Using special equipment to study anatomy with electrical responses, Tichauer has been able to judge the effectiveness of hundreds of tools in various work situations.

As an example of how fatigue led to the redesigning of a tool, the small, scholarly Tichauer told how women scraping paint in a chemical plant were being injured at an alarming rate by forklift trucks.

Investigation revealed the culprit to be a small paint scraper. "The paint scraper pushing on a blood vessel was causing the fingers to go numb," Tichauer explained. "They were getting fatigued easily and leaving work to go to the ladies room. The ladies room was on the other side of the truck route. We redesigned the scraper to make the handle shorter."

The accidents decreased immediately, Tichauer said.

Rich Gem Deposit Awaits Miners

the riches.

Discovered about 1880, the deposit yielded sapphires with a retail value approaching $30 million. And, according to the U.S. Geological Survey, probably twice as many stones still lie untouched, defying the efforts of man and his mining technology. The agency says the deposit is the richest gem-bearing formation in the country.

The sapphires first turned up in the sluice boxes of early day miners in rugged Yogo Gulch, about 15 miles southwest of this small cattle town in central Montana. The search for the source of the gems ended when several gold-miner ranchers found sapphires in the mounds of go-pheers. The stones, called Yogo sapphires after the gulch, were mined commercially by an English syndicate and an American firm until 1929. Since that time, only sporadic mining attempts have been made. Litigation over property rights tied up the land for years. The property now is owned by a Delaware corporation, Sapphire Village Inc., licensed to do business in Montana and California. President Herman H. Yaras of Oxnard, Calif., says some of the present shareholders were in a corporation formed in Montana which unsuccessfully attempted to mine the area in 1964-65. That company failed, Yaras said, because it had little knowledge of production and distribution methods.

Sapphire Village will begin mining the stones this summer and cut them on machines imported from Germany. The cutting operation will be done in Lewistown, 45 miles northeast of the mines, Yaras said. The expense of cutting the gems was said to be one of the chief economic stumbling blocks encountered by the British firm before it ceased operations. The Geological Survey report says the smallness of the sapphires contributed to the failure.

By using modern mining equipment and automatic cutting machines, Yaras said, the new company hopes to operate at a profit. All the stones, regardless of size, will be used for jewelry purposes, he said. During the early 60s, amateur rockhounds flooded into the mining area but they have been locked out for about three years. The new firm will let amateurs in on a limited basis only, Yaras said. To qualify for digging rights, amateurs must purchase homestead plots in Sapphire Village, a nearby area owned by the company. Yaras said Yogo stones retail for more than $200 per carat and are worth anywhere from $1 to $30 per carat uncut. The firm plans to do only surface mining, Yaras said, despite the fact that the ore-bearing rock formation runs several hundred feet deep. The Geological Survey's report on the Yogo mines says, "Cut sapphires of excellent quality, valued as much as $20 to $30 million have been produced from the deposit and reserves of sapphire-bearing material are probably adequate to supply several times the quantity mined."

Those tiny insects you see on your rose bushes, trees and vegetable plants may be common aphids, which rapidly spread viral diseases from one plant to another.

Dr. George Schaefer, a scientist at the New York State Agricultural Station at Geneva is studying how aphids feed. He wired one so that it became a switch in a delicate electrical circuit.

He hooked a strawberry plant leaf into a small battery. A gold wire 1-10,000th of an inch thick was attached to an aphid. A metal washer helped connect the circuit to a recording machine so that Dr. Schaefer could follow the aphid's feeding habits. He hopes to find a way to make a plant unappetizing to the insect.

All-America Glads
Three gladiolas with the tempting names Frosee Pink, Grape-Juice and Candy Doll have been accorded All-America honors for 1969 by the All-America Gladiolus Selections.

Frosee Pink (Class 440) is a daintily tinted pink and cream, ruffled variety developed by C. R. Poyner. The exquisite gladiolus has seven to eight florets opening simultaneously on long flower-heads of 19 more buds.

Grapejuice (266) by Carl Fischer, is as tangy as concord grape juice. It is small-flowered with seven-eight florets opening at once. The flowers are lightly frilled, on graceful, tall spikes.

Candy Doll (245), the work of Alex Summerville, is excellent for cutting and arranging. It is deep pink with a white throat. There are seven-eight heavily ruffled florets opening at the same time on a slender, 22-bud spike.

Lentils in a Pot
An attractive, fast-growing plant is the lentil, a common soup bean. Sow some in a pot for a pleasant surprise. The foliage is bright green. Better still, get your youngsters to plant and care for the lentils.

If you do not spread your lawn fertilizer evenly, you will have bright strips and dull spots when your grass turns green in the spring. If you use a spreader, follow a pattern closely so no wide spaces are missed or areas given a double dose.

Areas where you may run into difficulty are a corner, or near a walk, where the spreader may be tilted.

If you discover that the spread has been uneven, haul out your lawn rake and redistribute the fertilizer.

Selective Service Questions-Answers

Q: I am a freshman in college and have requested and received a II-S deferment. Must I re-submit a "Request for Undergraduate Deferment" (SSS Form 104) before I am eligible to receive a II-S deferment for my sophomore year?

A: No. Only one request is required. It authorizes your local board to grant a II-S deferment until you complete the requirements for a baccalaureate degree, fail to pursue satisfactorily a full-time course of study, or attain the twenty-fourth anniversary of the date of your birth, whichever occurs first.

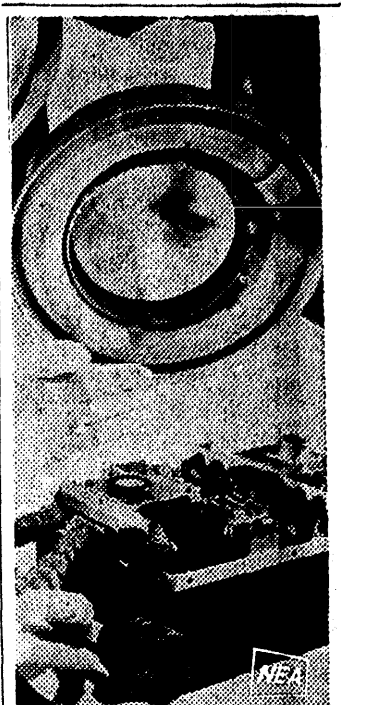

Q: I am a full-time undergraduate college student. Recently I received an Order to Report for Induction and I immediately requested and received a I-S(C) deferment. How long will this deferment last?

A: You will be deferred until the end of your academic year or until you cease to satisfactorily pursue such full-time course of instruction, whichever comes first.

Q: My neighbor's son fled to Canada upon receiving his induction notice. I understand it is his intention to return to the United States when he attains age 26. Will he thus escape requirement to serve in the Armed Forces?

A: No. He will continue to have a duty to report for induction. Your neighbor's son can be prosecuted and sent to prison for violation of the Selective Service Order to Report for Induction upon his return to the United States, regardless of his age.

Because fir plywood is the kind you usually get when you walk into a lumberyard and ask merely for plywood, most persons are unaware of how many varieties of plywood there are.

The two basic kinds of plywood are interior and exterior.
Both are made in the same manner: by gluing together sheets of veneer, usually at right angles to one another. But the exterior type is bonded with a special adhesive designed for permanent outside exposure.

The two basic classes of plywood are softwood and hardwood. The popular fir falls into the softwood category, along with pine, cedar, redwood, larch, cypress and many others.
The hardwoods include walnut, oak, birch, maple, mahogany and cherry. Incidentally, the designation depends on the kind of wood used for the face or top veneer.

Within the types and classes of plywood are several grades, most of which refer to the appearance of the face and back.
A-A grade is tops; A-B indicates an excellent face, with a slightly less perfect appearance on the back; A-C and A-D grades are used where only one side of the panel will be seen in the finished project.

Fir plywood is the most popular because it is the least expensive yet has tremendous strength. However, it requires the use of a special sealer to prevent its wild grain from coming through the finish coat.

There are two kinds of fir plywood sealer: one for use on wood which is to be finished such as varnish, shellac or lacquer; the other for wood which is to be painted. Hardwood ply-woods are treated in the same manner as solid hardwood.

Those who have worked with regular lumber are surprised to find, when they make their first purchase of plywood, that the dimensions are exact. That is, if you buy a piece of half-inch plywood 4 feet by 8 feet, those are its measurements. With regular lumber, the dimensions refer to the wood before it was sanded and prepared at the mill.

Plywood is not susceptible to splitting, even when nails and screws are driven close to the panel edges. When cutting plywood with a table or radial saw or a handsaw, the good side of the plywood should be face up.
When using a portable power saw, the good side should be face down.

In drilling small-diameter holes in plywood with either hand or power drills, use a piece of wood behind the panel to avoid splintering if the ap-

Pea Soup From Ritz-Carlton Cook Book

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

Associated Press Food Editor

It was a sad day for American cuisine when the old New York Ritz-Carlton hotel closed its doors. For that marked the day the late Louis Diat, its famous executive chef, retired. Through the Ritz restaurant, his cookbooks and his generous spirit, Louis had made a fabulous contribution to our cooking scene.

Like many other food writers,
I would occasionally visit Louis in the vast, fascinating, underground kitchens of the old Ritz to check the making of a French dish. Our liaison was Helen Ridley, a strikingly energetic and vivacious woman who collaborated with Diat on his cookbooks and served a practical home chef's apprenticeship under him. Helen's background is a wide one; she has taught home economics and done editorial and promotion work in the food field.

Fortunately Helen is still involved with the Ritz—the Boston
Ritz-Carlton hotel. Counseled by Charles Banino and other food and entertaining authorities there, she wrote the recently published "The Ritz-Carlton
Cook Book and Guide to Home Entertaining" (Lippincott). It's a fascinating volume and anyone who wants to entertain with style will find inspiration in it.

Because the Boston Ritz-Carl-ton is world-famous for its soups, we've chosen this Potage St. Germain from Helen's latest cookbook for your approval. It's a lovely concoction that calls for fresh green peas. In case you should want to use frozen peas, we tested it with both varieties and found both produced a first course worthy of epicurean company.

RITZ-CARLTON POTAGE ST. GERMAIN

5 tablespoons butter
1 medium onion, sliced thin
1 medium carrot, sliced thin
1 rib celery, sliced thin
7 cups chicken broth (home made or canned) 2 1/2 cups fresh peas (buy 2 1/2 pounds)
Few sprigs fresh chervil or 1/2 teaspoon dried crushed chervil
2 egg yolks
1 cup heavy cream
Salt and pepper to taste
1 cup Fried Croutons—see recipe below

In a large saucepot, melt two tablespoons of the butter. Add onion, carrot and celery and cook gently until vegetables are softened but not brown. Add broth and bring to a boil; add peas and chervil and cook gently until peas are very soft—about 35 minutes. Put through a food mill.

In a small bowl, whisk egg yolks slightly; add cream and whisk to combine.

Return soup mixture to sauce-pot and bring to a boil; then reduce heat to very low so boiling recedes. Gradually whisk in volk-cream mixture; stir in remaining three tablespoons butter. Add salt and pepper—amount of salt needed will depend on seasoning in broth.

Heat but do not let boil after volk-cream mixture is added.
Serve at once sprinkled with Fried Croutons.

If you like, after putting the soup mixture through the food mill, it may be kept hot in a double-boiler until serving time and the volk-cream mixture and remaining butter may be whipped in and heated—but not boiled—before serving.

Makes about two quarts—eight servings.

RITZ-CARLTON FRIED CROUTONS

Remove crusts from stale sandwich bread, and cut the bread into 1/4-inch dice. Fry them in clarified butter, turning them frequently until they are golden brown on all sides. Drain them and spread on paper towels to cool.

RITZ-CARLTON CHICKEN BROTH

1 whole fowl, cleaned and trussed (or 3 1/2 pounds chicken bones and backs)
2 pounds veal knuckles, cracked
4 quarts water
2 small onions
2 stalks celery and 1 medium carrot, coarsely chopped
Parsley stems
1 teaspoon rosemary leaves and a sprig of basil
2 cloves garlic, crushed
2 small bay leaves
2 dozen peppercorns
1 1/2 teaspoons salt

Put fowl (or chicken bones and backs) and veal knuckles into a soup kettle, add water, and bring to a boil. Skim surface until scum ceases to rise.
Add all other ingredients, reduce heat, cover kettle, and simmer, skimming surface when necessary. When fowl is tender, remove it. It can be used in salads or dishes for other meals. Continue cooking stock until liquid is reduced to two quarts. Strain it through cheesecloth and cool, uncovered. Cover and store in refrigerator for a few days or in freezer for several weeks. Makes two quarts.

Gibson Allows Cards To Split

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Fireballing Bob Gibson fired a four-hitter, pitching the St. Louis Cardinals past Pittsburgh 8-1 after the Pirates won the first game of their two-night double-header, 2-1 behind Jim Bunning.

Gibson, who struck out eight in evening his record at 2-2, lost his shutout in the ninth when a walk and a force out brought in a run.

Joe Torre gave him the needed hitting support, opening a five-run fourth with his fourth homer of the season, singling in Lou Brock in the seventh and then stroking a double in the ninth for the last St. Louis run.

Brock also singled in two runs in the fifth off Bruce Del Canto, who relieved starter Steve Blass, 2-1.

Bunning, pitching his first complete game since June 28, 1968, allowed only five hits—one a homer by Tim McCarver in SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Three 23-year-old rookie infielders and a 20-year-old outfielder who played last season in Class A are four big reasons why the Los Angeles Dodgers currently are tied for first place in the National League's Western Division.

"The kids have given the club a lot more speed and enthusiasm," says coach Jim Gilliam, referring to third baseman Bill Sudakis, shortstop Bill Grabarkewitz, second baseman Ted Sizemore and the baby of the group, outfielder Bill Russell.

The Dodgers, who finished seventh last year and eighth in 1967, were minus center fielder Willie Davis the first three weeks of the season and got little mileage out of veteran pitcher Don Drysdale, who now is on the disabled list with a sore right arm.

But the four kids and newcomer Andy Kosco, acquired in a trade with the Yankees, have helped the Dodgers get off to their best start since 1957.

Sudakis was hitting only .270 after the first 19 games but he had driven in 11 runs. Russell, who played for Bakersfield in the California League last season, was hitting .304 and his first four safeties were a single, double, triple and homer.

Sizemore was batting .338 and had knocked in 12 runs while Kosco was hitting .324, had three homers and 15 rbi's.

Grabarkewitz was hitting only .125 in the seven games since his recall from Spokane, where he played himself into shape after breaking an ankle last year at Albuquerque.

Manager Walter Alston admits that several unusual factors figured in his early-season use of so many youngsters.

"Sizemore came to spring training as a catcher," Alston says, "but I wanted to try him at shortstop because I thought he had more range than Paul Popovich."

Quick Adjustment

"He made some mistakes in spring training but he was quick to make adjustments. The more I see of Ted, the better I like him. He can catch, play the infield and outfield, he can run and he doesn't strike out much."

Sizemore played short until Grabarkewitz earned a promotion from Spokane and then Alston shifted the reformed catcher to second base.

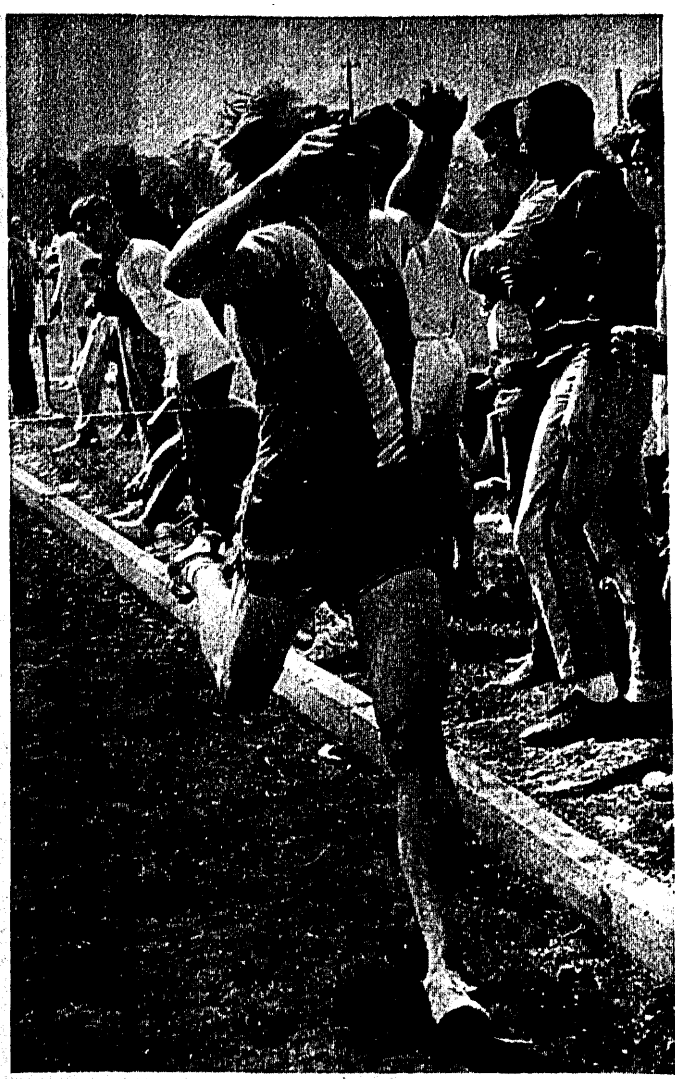

Meanwhile, Russell, who won't turn 21 until Oct. 21, admits he went to spring training hoping to make the grade with Albuquerque, the Dodgers' farm club in the Class AA Texas League.

"The players' strike was a break for me," Russell explained. "There weren't many players in shape when we played our first exhibition game and I had a pretty good afternoon," he says.

"But my big thrill was getting a hit off Jim Merritt (of Cincinnati) my first time at bat in the majors—and getting my first home run. The homer came at Houston."

Gilliam, a long-time star player for the Dodgers before becoming a coach, was summing up the revamped Los Angeles lineup.

"Russell, Willie Davis and Bill Crawford, who's only 22, give us three of the fastest outfielders in the business, and both Sizemore and Grabarkewitz can fly. Andy Kosco is the first legitimate cleanup hitter we've had since Tommy Davis in 1964."

RECORD-SETTER: Ron Sipek is shown breaking the tape at the finish of the mile run in which he set a new PMSC Conference record Wednesday. Sipek also captured the high jump and half mile, breaking the old standard in the high jump. Sipek was the individual standout as ISD won its third straight conference meet crown.

ISD Claims Third PMSC Title In Row

An expected tight, two-way race for team honors never developed as ISD ran away with its third straight PMSC Conference track and field meet crown Wednesday afternoon on the MacMurray College track.

The Tigers piled up 83½ points, well ahead of second-place Pleasant Hill with 51. Following were Triopia with 27 points, Meredosia 18, Bluffs 14, Chandler 10, and Virginia 4.

Ron Sipek and Willy Forrest sparked the winners as expected in the meet, in which three records were broken.

Sipek was a triple winner, taking the half mile, mile and high jump, breaking records in the mile and high jump. Sipek's 4:56.7 in the mile cracked the old mark of 4:58.0 set by Bill Fox of ISD last year. His 5:11½ high jump was one inch better than the old standard. Sipek also ran on the winning mile relay.

Forrest captured the 100 and 220 dashes and came in second in the long jump besides running on the winning varsity relay crew.

Pleasant Hill's Mike Kinscherff was a third outstanding individual, winning the high hurdles and long jump and taking second in the 220. Kinscherff's 15.75 time in the hurdles easily broke the old record of 16.7.

Teammate Chris Jakulski won the low hurdles, came in second in the high jump and fourth in the long jump.

Maloney Tosses Third No-Hitter

Reds' Ace Whiffs 13 In 10-0 Win

CINCINNATI (AP) — Jim Maloney, Cincinnati's strapping right-hander, fired the third no-hitter of his career Wednesday night, overpowering the hapless Houston Astros 10-0 with a brilliant 13-strikeout performance.

Maloney, who pitched two extra innings for the Reds four years ago—and lost one of them—limited the Astros to five walks in becoming the second National Leaguer to hurl hitless ball this year.

Montreal's Bill Stoneman no-hit the Philadelphia Phillies 7-0 on April 17.

Maloney, a 28-year-old fireballer who has won 15 or more games for Cincinnati in six successive seasons despite recurring shoulder trouble, walked batters in the second, fourth, sixth, seventh and ninth innings. They were the only Houston base runners.

Shortstop Darrel Chaney came up with a defensive gem behind Maloney in the sixth when he raced into short left field and made an over-the-shoulder grab of Johnny Edwards' looping fly ball. It was the only ball hit out of the infield through the sixth.

Staked to a commanding lead when the Reds exploded for seven runs in the fourth, Maloney continued bearing down and had eight strikeouts through the fifth.

In the eighth, he doubled in a run and sprinted home on Bob Toland's single before going out to face the Astros in the ninth.

Maloney, who had pitched the only two previous complete games for the Reds' staff this spring, stopped their losing streak at five games and extended Houston's tailspin to eight straight setbacks.

He went into the game with a 2-0 record and a sparkling 1.86 earned run average, having tossed a four-hitter against San Diego in his last start five days ago.

On June 14, 1965, Maloney pitched 10 hitless innings against the New York Mets, then gave up an 11th inning homer by Johnny Lewis and another hit, losing the game 1-0.

Allen, Phillies Cool Off Cubs 3-1

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Richie Allen slammed a tie-breaking double in the fifth inning and Woody Fryman protected it by scattering seven hits as the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Chicago Cubs 3-1 Wednesday night.

Fryman and Chicago's Bill Hands were locked in a 1-1 tie when Allen doubled to center, scoring John Briggs from first base. Briggs just beat the relay to the plate, sliding under catcher Randy Hundley.

Mike Ryan insured Fryman's third victory in four decisions with his second homer into the lower left field seats in the sixth.

Robinson's 10th Homer In April Gains 3-2 Margin

DETROIT (AP) — Frank Robinson set a major league record Wednesday night by smashing his 10th April homer, a two-run sixth inning shot that paced the Baltimore Orioles to a 3-2 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Robinson's two-out homer off Pat Dobson broke a scoreless tie, sending Orioles' left-hander Dave McNally on the way to his fourth victory without a loss. Boog Powell's eighth inning homer gave the Orioles a 3-0 lead before Detroit rallied for two runs in the bottom of the inning, chasing McNally.

The old record of nine homers in the month of April was set by Ken Williams of the St. Louis Browns in 1922. Robinson's blast, which followed a single by McNally, sailed into the upper deck in left.

RUSHVILLE — Host Rushville's fine golf team scored a 9-3 victory over the Jacksonville High school golfers at Scripps Park Wednesday afternoon.

Rushville won five of the six matches, but four of the five matches were decided on the final hole. Steve Turner was the only Crimson winning a match.

Rushville's Joe Reische was medalist with a 36 over the par 35 layout. Jim Dowland of JHS was next with a 37.

Mikus, Sparrow Hurl Winchester To Sweep Of 2

WINCHESTER — Dan Sparrow and Mike Mikus each tossed a five-inning one-hitter as Winchester swept a double-header, 15-0 and 3-2, from Franklin Monday afternoon. The report was unintentionally omitted from Tuesday's editions.

Sparrow fanned nine and walked one in winning the opener. Merl Dunham had a triple and a single and Stan Weder a pair of doubles for the victors, who had a pair of seven-run innings.

Mikus whiffed six and allowed three free rides in the nightcap. Down 2-1 entering the fifth, Winchester, now 5-1 with five straight wins, rallied on singles by Sparrow, Dorman Deeder, Rex McIntire and Weder, with the last two coming after two were out.

Bruce Carter had the only hit for Franklin, now 1-7, in each game.

Hall One-Man Gang As Twins Tip Seattle 6-4

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Tom Hall—a last-minute starter—for sore armed Dean Chance struck out nine batters, got two hits and scored two runs Wednesday as the Minnesota Twins turned back the Seattle Pilots 6-4 for their fifth straight victory.

Hall, who needed relief help in the seventh, was called in from the bullpen to pitch for Dean Chance, whose arm stiffened after pregame warmup tosses.

The Twins, winners in 1 of their last 16 games, exploded for a four-run fifth inning, Hall providing a bunt single to load the bases for Ted Uhlaender's two-run single off loser Gene Brabender.

Owners OK Settlement On Playoffs

NEW YORK (AP) — The 26 professional football club owners, still wrestling with the problems of realigning for the 1970 merger of the American and National League, agreed Wednesday on a playoff system culminating in the Super Bowl.

The system, based on the assumption of a 13-13 division into two conferences, calls for seven games over four weekends ending with the Super Bowl game between the champions of the two conferences.

There would be four teams playing off in each conference, the three division winners plus the second-place team with the best won-lost record in the conference. An elaborate system of breaking tie games was devised, none of which involved any tie playoff.

In another development, Billy Sullivan, president of the Boston Patriots of the AFL, said his team would play all of its 1969 games in Boston at the same stadium.

Since Fenway Park, normally the home of the Patriots, would be occupied with baseball at least one Sunday and possibly three or four, depending on the baseball division races, this would seem to mean the club would not play in Fenway. However, Sullivan refused to say it in so many words.

Stadium Commitment

According to Sullivan, he has a commitment for a stadium in Boston. Harvard and Boston College would be the logical sites but their availability probably would depend on the outcome of legislation now in the hopper to build a stadium in Boston.

Sullivan also said he and his associate had turned down a $16 million offer to move the club to Memphis but refused to name any of the persons involved except to say one man is from Los Angeles. Sullivan said he had nine bonafide offers within the year.

The AFL and NFL met jointly in the morning, announcing only the playoff plans. Then they went back into separate sessions.

When the two leagues completed business for the day, Commissioner Pete Rozelle said the plan to move three NFL teams into a conference with the 10 AFL teams seemed to have the greatest acceptance in both leagues.

When asked how the three teams that would move would be determined, Rozelle said, "I don't know. I am going to have some private talks with a number of teams in the next couple of days."

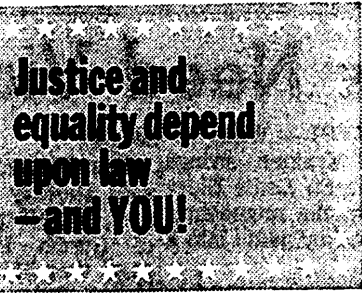

Rozelle indicated half a dozen NFL teams were willing to explore the plan but he emphasized that none had agreed or even been asked to move. He said there were three steps in the process, first, finding the teams willing to move; second, getting the approval of the NFL, and third, getting the approval of the AFL.

Art Modell, president of the NFL and owner of the Cleveland Browns, said he favored the plan of adding three NFL teams to the present 10 AFL teams in a new 13-team American Conference of the NFL. The remaining 11 teams of the NFL would form the National Conference.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—The Kentucky Derby Saturday shapes up as a race among this big four — Majestic Prince, Top Knight, Arts and Letters and Dike. The $125,000 classic at a mile and a quarter will be the 95th running of the Derby. (UPI Telephoto)

Ack Ack Out, Two More Enter Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — pretty girl—you don't ask too much too soon." Ack Ack was shipped to New York to be pointed for the Withers mile at Aqueduct on May 10.

The horse that finished third in the Trial, Fleet Allied, was declared in the historic race at Churchill Downs as was Traffic Mark, a dark brown plugger who won the Arkansas Derby earlier this year. With Ocean Roar, the castoff son of Swaps from the small tracks in Ohio, they form the ragamuffin challenge to the big four—Majestic Prince, Top Knight, Arts and Letters and Dike.

"We're simply not ready to go the mile and a quarter against this kind of competition," explained trainer Frank (Downie) Bonsal. "It's like handling a

Likely Starters

These are the seven names likely to be dropped—along with $500 checks—into the entry box early Thursday. Each owner must post another $1,000 when his horse goes to the post Saturday at 5:30 p.m., EDT.

With four top horses ridden by champion jockeys, resulting in the smallest field since only five challenged Citation in 1948, the 95th Derby stacks up as one of the most royal of these blue grass classics.

President Nixon will be among the more than 100,000 spectators, the first chief executive ever to attend a Derby and the first to witness any big time horse race in close to 100 years. Also on hand will be 26 Republican governors, playing hookey from their convention in Lexington. Millions will watch on television (CBS-TV).

Fleet Allied, the only California-bred horse in the field, became a contender after a 10-minute conference at the barns between trainer J. C. McBride and Vince Kanowsky, a Pasadena, Calif., furniture manufacturer who sold shares in the colt to 14 friends for $900,000.

"We don't think Fleet Allied has run his best race," McBride said. "He shipped badly here from California, losing 50 pounds. He was tired in the trial. We think he can do better."

Traffic Mark, housed in an obscure stall well removed from barns 37 and 39 where the other Derby horses are quartered, was a surprise entry—even to Ronnie Warren, a former rider training his first Derby horse. "Mr. Roberts wanted to enter him, and he's boss," said Warren, referring to Robert F. Roberts, a Shreveport, La., oil man.

Only One Workout

Arts and Letters, the Paul Mellon speedster, was the lone contender staging a workout, going six furlongs in 1:12. His rivals merely galloped.

Majestic Prince, the imposing big red, galloped nearly two miles and then came back to his stall to munch wintergreen mints from the hands of trainer Johnny Longden.

"He's untested, and it's true we are inclined sometimes to low-rate California horses," said Elliott Burch, dapper trainer of the Prince. "But he scares you. He is so impressive, and he's never been beaten. He may be another Man O'War."

"You have to go with the Prince until somebody licks him," added Lucien Luarin, Dike's trainer. "Mine is a good come-from-behind horse and he's ready."

Ray Metcalf, trainer of Top Knight who hasn't had a race since winning the Florida Derby March 29, shrugged off the suggestion that the Knight might be stale from underwork.

GETTING NEW LOOK

BEARDSTOWN — Volunteers have nearly finished construction of a cement block building to replace the old concession stand near the grandstand at Recreation Ballpark.

Several contractors and others have donated their services in this construction job, as well as in the erection of fencing for the Little League ball park.

Baseball for the "kids," always highly organized here, will be getting underway in a few days.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The New Orleans Saints of the National Football League announced Wednesday the signing of two free agents for the 1969 season.

The two, running back Steve Preece of Oregon State and safety Jimmy Livingston of Southern Methodist, are scheduled to participate at the Saints' rookie camp which begins June 11 at Tulane University.

"Top Knight is a bold aggressive horse who doesn't need to race," he said. "If you have a Sunday suit, you preserve it. You don't wear it out."

Howard's Eighth Homer Of Season Nets 1-0 Victory

WASHINGTON (AP) — Frank Howard's eighth home run backed the five-hit pitching of Jim Hannan and Dennis Higgins Wednesday night, giving the Washington Senators a 1-0 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

The victory was the Senators' sixth in their last seven games. Howard's leadoff homer in the fourth inning and a double by Boston's Rico Petrocelli were the only extra base hits in the duel between the two Washington pitchers and the Red Sox' Lee Stange, Vicente Romo and Sparky Lyle.

Hannan, 2-1, allowed four hits, struck out five and walked one before leaving for a pinch hitter in the seventh. Stange, 1-3, gave up five hits before giving way to a pinch hitter in the eighth. Boston . . . 000 000 00—0 5 0

Niekro Pitches Atlanta To 6-3 Win Over Padres

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Braves took advantage of San Diego rookie Leon Everitt's wildness and beat the Padres 6-3 Wednesday night behind the six-hit pitching of Phil Niekro.

The Atlanta knuckleballer pitched out of a bases loaded snarl after walking three in the first inning and went on to boost his record to 4-1.

His only other trouble came when Nate Colbert homered in the fourth inning. Tony Gonzalez hit one in the sixth and Gonzalez was hit by a pitch in the eighth and came around on a wild pitch and Colbert's infield out.

Four walks set up all of Atlanta's runs, except Felix Millan's third homer in the fifth inning. San Diego . . . 000 101 010—3 6 0

Firebaugh Sets Track Record At Wesleyan

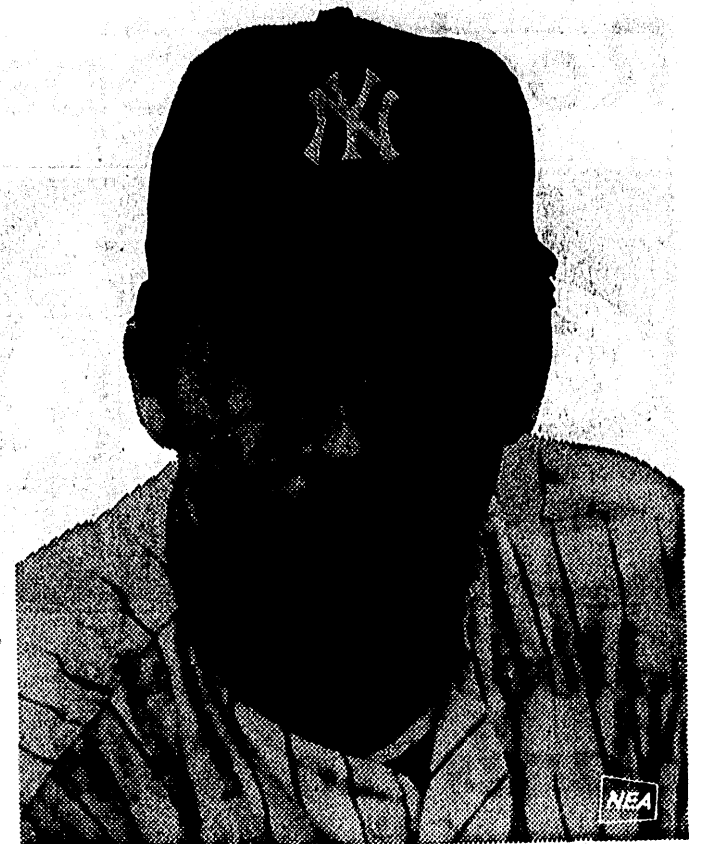

BLOOMINGTON — Rich Firebaugh set a track record in the mile run as MacMurray came in third in a four-team meet at Illinois Wesleyan Wednesday afternoon.

Host Illinois Wesleyan ran up 99 points, followed by Canton Junior College with 44, MacMurray with 24 and Eureka with 17.

Firebaugh turned in a 4:32.8 time in winning the mile. The old track record was 4:51.0. Teammate Jim Samuel had Mac's only other first, in the 880.

Other Highlander points came on Mike Haliburton's third in the high jump, Bob Fugett's fourth in the pole vault, Mike Sweeney's fourth in the javelin, Bruce Mathieson's third in the half mile, Firebaugh's second and Fugett's third in the three-mile.

Bobby Murcer

Yanks' Murcer Gets 'Mantle' Treatment

By FRANK ECK

AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

Some of the Yankees knew how it was in the days when Mickey Mantle was leading them to American League pennants. Tom Tresh and Joe Pepitone knew. They would crowd around Mantle's locker after an opening game and interrupt the interviews.

Maybe somebody in the front office, or maybe even Manager Ralph Houk, told the hired hands to act as if Mantle were still here. And that's what the Yankees do when Bobby Murcer, their new third baseman, comes through.

This is not to say Murcer, a product of Oklahoma — Mantle's native state — is another Mantle. But Mickey was known as the leader and the switcher because he batted from both sides of the plate, depending on the pitcher.

Murcer can never be another Mantle because he hits only left-handed. But he has Mantle's locker, Mickey's No. 3 spot in the batting order and wears uniform No. 1. And he was signed by Tom Greenwade, the same scout who discovered Mantle 20 springs ago.

Power For Size

Murcer is a real slasher and for a fellow who spent the last two years in the Army he packs real power, possibly more than any other major league rookie under 6 feet. Murcer is 5 foot 11 and 175 pounds which is 10 pounds heavier than in 1966, the year the Yankees sent him off to Toledo for more experience.

The Yankees took a look at Murcer in 32 games at the tail-end of 1965 and at the start of 1966. For all his efforts he showed 21 hits and one home run, and he prayed nobody would hit the ball to him at shortstop.

This spring Murcer is the new Yankee third baseman and after seven games he showed 14 hits, 10 runs batted in, three home runs and a .438 batting average.

Murcer was pretty much the whole show the day the Yankees opened their home season. With two out in the third inning he gave the Yankees their first run, sending relief pitcher Casey Cox's first pitch high into the upper right field stands. He had not played a game in two years but the fans seemed to sense this well-built left-handed hitter could be the new Yankee hero.

Instant Hero

After that Ruthian clout the stands came alive each time Murcer came to bat. He responded with a run scoring single up the middle and two innings later he doubled to left field with the bases loaded. Three hits and four runs batted home in one game. Not even Mantle could improve on that.

The day after the opener, Murcer hit two home runs, his fourth and fifth — all against Washington.

"We still haven't learned how to pitch to him," said Washington manager Tom Williams after it was over.

"I like the way Murcer swings," said Manager Houk who was telling anyone who would listen in spring training that Murcer would get his share of hits.

"I think he's the kind of a kid who can handle the publicity. He won't get home run happy."

Murcer is a modest young man with a ready smile. He turns 23 on May 20. In parts of his two previous seasons he hit .198 for 106 trips to the plate. But he was only a baby then and the Yankees were going nowhere and looking at everybody with potential. Because he ex-ceeded 90 official at bats he no longer is eligible for the rookie of the year award. But who knows, there's always the most valuable player prize.

Celts Still Alive

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Boston's Celtics, given up for dead when they left Los Angeles, returned as a very lively club for the fifth game of the National Basketball Association playoffs Thursday night.

After winning the opening two games at the forum, the Los Angeles Lakers dropped two in Boston and the best-of-seven series went into a deadlock.

Sam Jones' 20-foot looper with two seconds left brought the Celtics an 89-88 victory on Tuesday night just when the Lakers thought they had clinched the victory.

"It was a bad shot and barely even tipped the side of the rim," commented Laker star Jerry West. "Their luck is unbelievable sometimes."

"But we played dumb basketball. Maybe we deserved to lose."

"This loss has got to hurt us. There would be no way we could lose Thursday if we had won this one."

For the four games, just one point separates the two clubs. The Lakers won 120-118 and 118-112. Boston was 111-105 and then 89-88.

It's up to the Lakers to make the comeback.

On The House

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Question—Some time soon I hope to build a roof over our rear patio, using translucent fiberglass panels. A neighbor has something similar and says it is nice to have a roof which doesn't cut out all of the light yet protects from the direct rays of the sun. However, he says that because heat sometimes builds up on the underside of the roof, he is sorry that he didn't provide some sort of ventilation. Can you tell me how to handle this when I put up the roof?

Answer—Before you go ahead you must determine whether your house has a sizable roof overhang. If it doesn't, the back edge of the roof is set about eight inches under the eaves of the house and a similar distance from the house wall. Measure the overhang to find out whether this is possible. If it is, you'll have plenty of ventilation with virtually no extra work. If it isn't, you'll have to build a small overhang about eight inches above the new roof, using a piece of translucent fiberglass as the covering. Use aluminum flashing to prevent leaks.

Question—We bought a second-hand mobile home and we are getting it ready to move to a mobile home park. There is a canopy and vent over the cooking range, plus a nearby exhaust fan and another exhaust fan in the bathroom. How often should these be turned on?

Answer—The vent should remain open all the time. So should the vent in the bathroom. Although you didn't mention it, there's undoubtedly one there. The exhaust fans in both places need be turned on only occasionally when there is a need to remove excess moisture. This is especially important when heat is on during periods of very cold weather, since condensation can be a problem at those times.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
and HOROSCOPE

THURSDAY, MAY 1 — Born today, you are a highly intelligent person who must nevertheless be urged—at times even goaded—to make full use of your capabilities. The pleasures of life—leisure time activities, for the most part—draw you constantly and unless you make up a work schedule for yourself and stick to it assiduously, you may well never gain the position of authority or the degree of success to which your abilities ought to entitle you.

For all this, however, you cannot with total justice be termed lazy. You may not enjoy the sort of work that makes for success in a material sense—but you have no hesitation at all about working long and hard hours on some after-hours activity that takes your interest. Indeed, your hobbies may ultimately grow into small careers for you, since they take so much of your time.

You are not one to harbor any false notions of yourself. You know full well where your faults lie, just as you know how to correct them. With you, it is a matter not of being unable to rectify those personality traits which others may consider drawbacks; it is, rather, a case of not wishing to rectify them. Your concerns are elsewhere.

To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birth date and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

Friday, May 2
TAURUS (April 21-May 21)—Help another to achieve a happy home. A day when a word of advice from you could literally change another's world.

GEMINI (May 22-June 21)—When asked a personal question, give a personal answer. You will only make the situation worse by hedging.

CANCER (June 22-July 23)—You could well make a quick climb to success on the strength of today's achievement. Make every moment count.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23)—The emergency of a new attitude toward old policies on the employment scene must be recognized. Don't be kept out of things.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23)—Make it your business to see that another doesn't unwittingly give the wrong impression. Thanks come later.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23)—Unite with family members for concerted action against an outside force. You can save the situation with a show of strength.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)—Feelings run high on the employment scene. Take care that you don't allow emotions to make your decisions for you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22)—Search your own recent past for the cause of present difficulties with co-workers. Be sure to hold up your end.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23-Jan. 20)—Though you may be tempted to let down your hair in the company of others on the employment scene, this is not the day for it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 1)—The wise Aquarius will anticipate opposition for his plans and be prepared for it. Your best defense is certainly an offense.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 21)—Those who harbor ill feelings against you will find a likely target if you slacken your productivity. A day for hard work.

ARIES (March 22-April 20)—Be tactful in the manner of your rejection. The Aries who further ruffles feelings does himself great harm.

SACRED HEART CLUB MEETS IN ROODHOUSE HOME

Stockholm's first subway system was completed in 1957.

lawlessness

Reports of the Federal Bureau of Investigation disclose a shocking 89 percent increase in crime in the United States between 1960 and 1967.

Last year more than 3.8 million serious crimes were reported. Many more—no one knows how many—were not reported. The 16 percent increase in the figures for 1967 over the preceding year included an upward climb in violent crimes against persons and property.

Arrests reached a staggering five and a half million persons, of whom more than a third were under age 21. The causes of crime and social unrest are many and varied. The remedies are not simple. They call for the combined efforts of government and individual citizens in many spheres of American life. Achieving social justice and equality under law must be the common goals of all of us.

This year on May 1 we again observe LAW DAY USA. The theme for 1969 is: "Justice and equality depend upon law—and you!"

It's a short way of saying that justice and equal opportunity do in fact rely both upon laws and courts and upon the attitudes of individual Americans towards other Americans.

And it is a meaningful reminder for everyone—on May 1 and every day!

Justice and equality depend upon law—and YOU!

Law Day USA May 1

Morgan County Bar Association

LAW DAY - MAY 1st

(A letter to the police department of a large city in Texas by the wife of a minister.)

Dear Sirs:
One of the most common phrases heard in our society and our city today is "police brutality." Perhaps I don't understand the meaning, but I would like to give you one mother's viewpoint on this subject.

To begin, I should first tell you that I have two teen-age sons, and being a mother I cannot help but want the very best of everything for them. I am a 'typical mother' in that I don't want to see them hurt by anyone. I am not a typical mother, for I see things many mothers never hear of, much less become involved in, because my husband is a minister and we see the very best and the sordid worst.

I would like you to be brutal with my sons. Is that a surprise?

If you find them speeding in a car PLEASE BE BRUTAL. I have sat at the hospital holding a grieving mother's hand because of someone's mistake. That was brutal. I have helped nurse a beautiful teen-age girl crippled in a wreck. That was brutal. I have played organ music at funeral services for babies, teenagers, and adults because someone drove too fast. That was brutal.

If you should catch my underage sons with liquor in their possession, PLEASE BE BRUTAL. I have sat all night by my husband's side trying to help piece together two under-age young men's lives, both broken by drinking. That was brutal. I have listened to the horrors experienced by another man while he was drunk and heard him recall the many jails he had served time in for this. That was brutal. I have helped feed hungry children because a drunken father didn't come home. That was brutal. I have tried to console a mother whose daughter was killed after being struck by a drunken driver. That was brutal.

If you should find my sons with drugs in their possession PLEASE BE BRUTAL. I have tried to help rehabilitate a woman just out of prison for shooting her husband while she was drugged. That was brutal. I have seen a handsome young man turn into an old ugly one because of drugs. That was brutal. I have seen a young mother who was addicted to a drug scream and rave for lack of a "fix." That was brutal.

If you find my sons committing any kind of immoral act or carrying any pornographic materials, PLEASE BE BRUTAL. I have listened to the sad cry of a young girl who was pregnant but not married. That was brutal. I have been present when a boy and girl broke the news to their parents that they had to marry. That was brutal. I have tried to comfort a mother whose beautiful daughter was criminally raped. That was brutal. I have seen a promising young man with a brilliant future have to give it up, and too young assume the responsibilities of a wife and baby. That was brutal. If you ever see my sons taking something that isn't theirs or willfully destroying property, PLEASE BE BRUTAL. I have walked into a hushed, sacred church that was stripped of everything that could be sold. That was brutal. I have seen a lovely expensive home and yard completely torn up by vandals. That was brutal. I have wiped a little boy's tears and helped him hunt for his stolen bicycle. That was brutal.

If you should ever catch my sons doing anything illegal, PLEASE BE BRUTAL. I have come to realize that your kind of "brutality" cannot in any way compare with the brutality that comes from breaking our laws. My husband and I have tried to teach our sons that their rights end where someone else's begin. We believe they have learned this lesson, but in case they forget, we look to you and others who influence their lives — teachers, coaches, etc. — to see that they remember. And if you must be brutal to remind them THEN PLEASE, BE BRUTAL. I do not want my two sons to grow into two grown-up boys. I want them to become men, able to assume their places in this world and make a good contribution to it. I sincerely hope they won't need your help, but if they do, and if you must THEN BE BRUTAL.

Compliments of Westfair Baptist Church

Jacksonville, Illinois

Read: Rom. 13:1-7

The Christian should obey the law and magistrates of the land, not march in defiance, and as some clergy creating, abetting, and encouraging disobedience to the law.

There is a lawful way to dissent, and this is one of the very few republics that permit one to do so. Any other avenue is, in the end, the loss of everything worthwhile for every individual.

Every major empire that has fallen into the ruins of decay witnessed everyone doing what was right in their own eyes just prior to the final blow. If there is not a major repentance in this great republic, we are about to witness our end.

You are invited to attend our All Bible Sunday School at 9:30 a.m. and worship services at 10:30 a.m. each Sunday.

Poach Eggs With Vegetables For Luncheon

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

How recipes travel! We've come upon an interesting poached egg and vegetable dish made by a French woman named Madeleine. But the dish isn't French. Madeleine's husband, born in South Africa, taught her how to prepare it. When Madeleine came to New York to live she gave the recipe to a friend who passed it along to us.

Madeleine serves the egg dish for lunch. With a friend or two sitting by in the kitchen, she cooks while she talks. She also starts a pot of coffee brewing, sets the table and cuts a loaf of French bread into chunks. Sweet butter goes on the table, too. Lunch is ready! One confession we must make. Madeleine puts fresh tomatoes in her egg and vegetable dish. But because we found it convenient to use the sliced tomatoes that now come in cans—and think you may, too—this change in her recipe has been made.

If you have one of those casseroles with a non-stick coated lining, use it for this dish. It will look handsome when you bring it to the table and the lining will keep the eggs from adhering to the pan. A similar skillet would also work well.

EGGS MADELEINE
2 cans (each 14 1/2 ounces) sliced baby tomatoes
2 slices bacon
1 cup green pepper, seeded and sliced into thin rings
1 medium onion, peeled and sliced into rings
1/4 cup thin celery crescents
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
4 large eggs
Paprika

Turn tomatoes into a one-quart measure. Remove enough of the liquid so that tomatoes measure three cups.

In a 10-inch non-stick coated aluminum shallow casserole or skillet, cook bacon until crisp. Remove bacon to paper toweling to drain; leave bacon fat in casserole. To bacon fat add the three cups tomatoes, green pepper, onion, celery, salt and pepper. Over moderate heat simmer for 15 minutes.

Break an egg into a saucer being careful not to puncture yolk; slip it onto tomato mixture. Add remaining eggs in the same way, covering as much as possible of tomato mixture. Sprinkle eggs with a little paprika. Cover tightly and simmer until eggs are firmly set—three to five minutes. Garnish with crumbled bacon.

Business — Market Wrapup

Business Mirror

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Freed from some of the routine chores by labor saving devices, much as the housewife is freed from kitchen drudgery, the modern secretary these days is greatly expanding her role and influence.

The evidence is everywhere. There's the boss at a two-hour lunch, for example, while back at the office letters that will bear his signature rise in volume from the electric typewriters.

More and more responsibilities are delegated to her and, as many men have found, secretaries often can handle the details of administration with much more facility than men.

A survey by the 26,000-member National Secretaries Association, which is trying to upgrade the job from a trade to a profession, shows that 78 per cent of members write letters on their own initiative and 71 per cent now supervise other workers.

Even the titles are changing. The upcoming president of the NSA, Bertha Stronach of International Business Machines, carries the title of senior staff assistant and has two secretaries under her supervision.

With a salary well up in five figures, Miss Stronach places a premium on initiative in a secretary. A good secretary, she believes, no longer is a girl with a stenographer's pad. Often she does her own thinking rather than waiting for the boss to dictate his thoughts to her.

To be able to do so she must know what the boss is up to and what his plans for the future are. And she must be aware, Miss Stronach says, of the boss' plans and goals of the department.

In some ways she must be even better informed than her boss; in office procedures, for example, where great changes are under way because of data processing and other technological developments.

In her own job Miss Stronach once was given dictation by her boss, L. Millard Collins, a middle management man. Later he merely scribbled notes of instruction and eventually wrote "you do" on letters to be answered.

Inevitably a secretary's work draws her into the personal affairs of her boss because in the executive suite there is no sharp demarcation between social and business affairs. The area can be touchy, because it is also the wife's domain.

In determining her responsibilities to her boss in activities not solely of a corporate nature, Miss Stronach uses this maxim as a guide: "If it helps him in his over-all job responsibilities then it's part of his job." And part of her's as well.

This changing role of the secretary helps not only to build up the ego but the paycheck also, and experienced secretaries now are usually in the $125 to $135 a week category, but with some earning up to $200.

How To Spot Phonies In Mail-Order Sales

By CARLTON SMITH and RICHARD PUTNAM PRATT

Mail-order life insurance doesn't have many friends. In fact, you don't usually hear about it at all until somebody raises the subject so he can knock it. Usually, this somebody is an insurance agent.

Agents naturally take a dim view of mail-order policies, since they cut into the agent's business. But there are better, and less selfish reasons, for the rest of us to think twice about buying coverage by mail.

Too often, it's an invitation to trouble. Considering the risks, you'd be best off to throw all direct mail solicitations in the waste basket if it weren't for one thing — perfectly good coverage can be bought by mail and at a marked savings. Your aim should be to save the money, but avoid the trouble.

This isn't quite as tough as it sounds. You have to learn what makes a bad insurance policy and then run in the other direction when you meet one.

It's something you ought to know, anyway, since a bad policy is a bad policy, whether it's offered by mail, by an agent, or through your membership in the Eastbay Esoteric Association.

Here are some suggestions that will help you spot the poor ones: —If something sounds like an unbelievable bargain, don't believe it. Selling by mail is cheaper than direct selling, but not enough to make "25-cent-per-month" policies possible.

—If the advertising implies that the policy is government-sponsored—as in Veterans' Policies, GI Policies and like—forget it. These are gray-bearded ruses used to make you think you're getting something like the cheap coverage sold to soldiers.

—Use a magnifying glass on the fine print that tells what the policy covers—and what it doesn't. Bad policies often seem limitless in their coverage in the opening paragraphs, but then cancel most of this out with a lengthy list of exceptions at the end.

—If you are in doubt about a company, check with your state insurance commissioner. If the company isn't licensed in your state, you'll have a hard time fighting any disputed claims. Many states will also give you a rundown on any company's solvency or claims performance.

—As a last resort, go to your local library and ask to see its copy of "Best's Life Insurance Reports." This highly regarded trade publication reports on the financial status of companies and clearly indicates those recommended.

CORN PRICES

FORGE AHEAD

CHICAGO (AP) — Corn futures prices again forged ahead nearly 2 cents a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade under active buying.

The advance tended to influence buying of other grain futures and of soybeans, at times, but this latter activity dissipated near the close and when corn futures closed on a high note.

Other grains and soybeans were generally mixed. When trade closed, wheat was 1/2 cent a bushel lower to 1/4 higher, May 1.29 1/4; corn was 1/2 to 1 1/4 higher, May 1.26; oats were 3/4 to 1 1/4 higher, May 65 1/2 cents; rye was unchanged to 2 cents lower, May 1.21 1/4; and soybeans were 1/4 lower to 1/2 higher, May 2.65 1/2.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — Investors big and small jumped off the sidelines and back into the action Wednesday to send the stock market soaring in extremely heavy trading.

The Dow Jones industrial average climbed 16.08—or 1.72 per cent—to 950.18. The Dow had gained 9.02 in Tuesday's enthusiastic session and has posted modest gains in the three previous sessions, but Wednesday's rise was the best since April 8, 1968 when the Dow climbed 18.61 points after President Johnson said he had received a message from Hanoi on peace efforts.

The New York Stock Exchange said Wednesday's turnover of 39.35 million shares—compared with 14.73 million Tuesday—was the eighth largest in its history, the best for a four-hour trading day, and the largest since Dec. 19 when 19.6 million shares changed hands in a regular 5 1/2 hour day.

One analyst called the session "a sort of a buying panic, with the large institutions with their big pools of cash and the small investors both jumping in for fear or being left out of what may prove a lasting rally."

The market's surge, brokers said, was a continuation of Tuesday's solid advance in which investors reportedly were encouraged by the market's ability not to buckle under apparently disquieting news, such as Charles de Gaulle's resignation as president of France.

Gains took an early strong lead over losses and held it to the end, although some of it was pared by profit taking. Of 1,584 issues traded, 942 advanced, and 419 declined. The year's new highs totaled 118 and the new lows 38. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose 4.2 to 338.1, with industrials up 8.0, rails up 2.1, and utilities up .6. The New York exchange index some 1,200 common stocks was up 0.51 at 57.99.

Eight of the 20 most-active issues on the Big Board were higher, 11 were lower, and 1 was unchanged. Analysts said some of the declines were due to profit-taking.

Pan American World Airways, in which a block of 475,900 shares was traded, was most-active, unchanged at 21 1/2.

Trading also accelerated on the American Stock Exchange, where volume climbed to 8.9 million shares, compared with 7.76 million Tuesday. The pace was the best since Jan. 29 when volume hit 9.27 million shares.

Parking, A Space Problem
PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Motorists in almost any part of the United States, having experienced the frustrations of attempting to find a parking place, can appreciate the traffic jam that is becoming a problem in outer space.

Advancing communications satellite technology and the wide potential application of such spacecraft to benefit mankind someday may lead to problems with regard to parking places in space for satellites that hover over one spot on earth, warns an RCA scientist.

"Communications satellite systems technology is so well developed, and new applications are being proposed in such profusion, that serious attention is being paid to the conservation of the 'new' planetary resource of geostationary parking spots," says Dr. Richard Marsten, chief engineer at RCA's Astro-Electronics Division here.

Police said the truck was driven by Yates Potter of Route 1. Minor damage resulted from the incident and the implement and contents were quickly removed.

No 'Idento-Tags' This Year For Illinois Motorists

CHICAGO (AP) — The Disabled American Veterans will not be sending "Idento-tag" miniature license plates to Illinois motorists this year.

The DAV attributed its decision to "computer problems" in the Illinois secretary of state's office. The secretary of state's office, however, said there have been no computer problems.

Fred Bristol, assistant national DAV adjutant, said Tuesday, "We'll mail into Illinois again next year. We couldn't get the necessary information on Illinois motorists in time this year."

"I understand it had something to do with computers in the secretary of state's office," he added.

Bristol continued, "By the time we could have mailed into Illinois this year, the novelty of the new color and new plates would have worn off. So we chose not to."

Richard Wolfe, administrative aid to Sec. of State Paul Powell, said there have been no problems—computer or otherwise—that would have caused the DAV a delay.

The DAV has been involved recently in a dispute over the state's authority to regulate its fund-raising activities.

A spokesman for Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott said the DAV's legal department has sent Scott's office letters challenging the state's right to police the DAV on grounds that Congress has granted the organization a charter similar to one held by Red Cross.

Scott's predecessor, William G. Clark, filed a suit against the national DAV in 1967 charging fraud in the "Idento-tag" fund-raising operation.

The Peace Corps maintains 13,800 volunteers in 59 countries. The Corps plans to train 6,500 new volunteers this year.

Since 1965, state and local government spending has doubled to more than $100 billion a year.

'Bluebird Man' Honored At Testimonial Dinner

The man who started America's effort to "bring back the bluebird" in 1927 was honored in 1969 at a testimonial dinner in his hometown of Quincy, Illinois.

Approximately 340 persons filled the Holiday Inn ballroom there this week to honor Dr. T. E. Musselman.

"T. E." now 83, maintained more than 1,000 bluebird nesting boxes in Illinois and Missouri for nearly 40 years, and his efforts served as the model for many others across the nation.

For several decades he was a popular nature lecturer, bird bander, writer and researcher in the nature field, and also taught and served as president of Gem City College in Quincy.

He dedicated his life to conservation of wildlife, and many conservationists feel that without his efforts there would no longer be any bluebirds alive for Americans to enjoy.

Now retired, he still maintains some nesting boxes for bluebirds and prothonotary warblers and is writing a book about bluebirds.

Highlight of "T. E. Night" was the dedication to him of a new painting of "Eastern Bluebirds" by wildlife artist Richard Sloan, one of the nation's leading bird artists.

In a slightly unique twist to the evening, T. E. in turn paid tribute to many persons who had helped him over the years, by presenting personally autographed prints of the Sloan bluebird painting to a number of special guests.

Eighteen of the recipients of these prints were on hand to receive them in person, coming from as far away as New Jersey to join in the festivities. These prints had been made available to Dr. Musselman by the Griggsville Wild Bird Society, who, with the City of Quincy, co-sponsored the event.

T. E. was allotted up to 100 prints of this painting to use as tokens of his appreciation to other persons who helped save the bluebird and helped his own bluebird conservation work. The recipients of 41 of these paintings have already been designated, and the others will be designated during the coming years to recognize outstanding and sustained contributions to the preservation of this species.

The sponsoring Society feels this is a fitting tribute to meritorious conservation effort, and that the signature of the original "bluebird man" on these prints will make them especially treasured among the recipients.

North Korea Waging 'Porous Warfare'

By AP Newfeatures
North Korea's shooting down of an unarmed American electronic surveillance plane over international waters coming on top of the capture of the USS Pueblo 14 months before may be evidence of an intensification of what military men in Seoul call North Korea's "porous warfare" against the South.

Marshal Kim Il-sung, undisputed ruler of North Korea since the Communist regime was established there after World War II, has never deviated from his goal—to reunify the country under Communist auspices. Held at bay since the end of the Korean War by an army of 500,000 South Koreans assisted by some 53,000 Americans helping man the demilitarized zone along the 38th parallel, Kim has tried to soften up the South through infiltration, assassination, and subversion.

Eliminating the American military presence in South Korea goes hand in hand with Kim's major objective. In recent months infiltration of the DMZ zone which cuts the Korean peninsula in two, has been aimed at the narrow segment manned by the United States troops. Fifteen U.S. soldiers were killed in 1968.

In South Korea itself, specially trained North Korean combat teams cut through barbed wire to strike at South Korean troops. Commandos slip across the rocky indented northeast coast of South Korea from fast 90-foot boats disguised as fishing craft. Carrying hand grenades, small arms and propaganda leaflets these east coast commandos strike at post offices and communication centers, kill village officials, soldiers and policemen.

So far the South Koreans say the infiltrators have had only negligible success. Between 1951 and 1968, 3,152 Red Agents were arrested, mostly in 1967 and 1968.

Military men say the North's guerrilla corps now numbers 6,000 men. North Korea's regular military establishment, the fourth largest in the Communist world, consists of 430,000 men. This is broken down into a 390,000-man army, 30,000 air-

Salt Lake Is Source Of Legend

By JIM HOGG
Written for Associated Press
SALT LAKE, N.M. (AP) — At some time in the far reaches of history, the Zuni Indians of western New Mexico were bad — so Zuni legend goes — and the Zuni Salt Woman left Black Rock Lake.

She traveled several miles south and took up residence at a point in northern Catron County 20 miles northwest of Quemado, where she formed a large salt lake.

The Zunis and other Indian tribes attach religious significance to the salt lake, but for the white man it has been a source of income.

The Arizona-New Mexico Salt Products Co. has made heavy investments in machinery to harvest salt commercially from the lake. The saline water from an apparent spring spreads out over the lake bed and evaporates, leaving salt.

But the Zunis still place prayer sticks at the edge of the lake and hope their prayers will bring rain. The prayers often do, elder Zunis say.

"According to our traditions and beliefs, ages ago Salt Lake was located about three miles east of Zuni Pueblo," Gordy Paywe, a young Zuni, said. "The Zuni people by their carryings-on and wrongdoings offended the Salt Woman. They made her mad and she flew away," he continued. "Every time she came to earth, that place became barren. Where she walked, nothing has since grown."

Paywe said salt has always been important to the Zunis and other Indian nations. He emphasized that the Salt Lake is for use by all Indians.

Before the coming of the white man, salt was also a form of money among Indians. A man's wealth was often measured by the salt he owned.

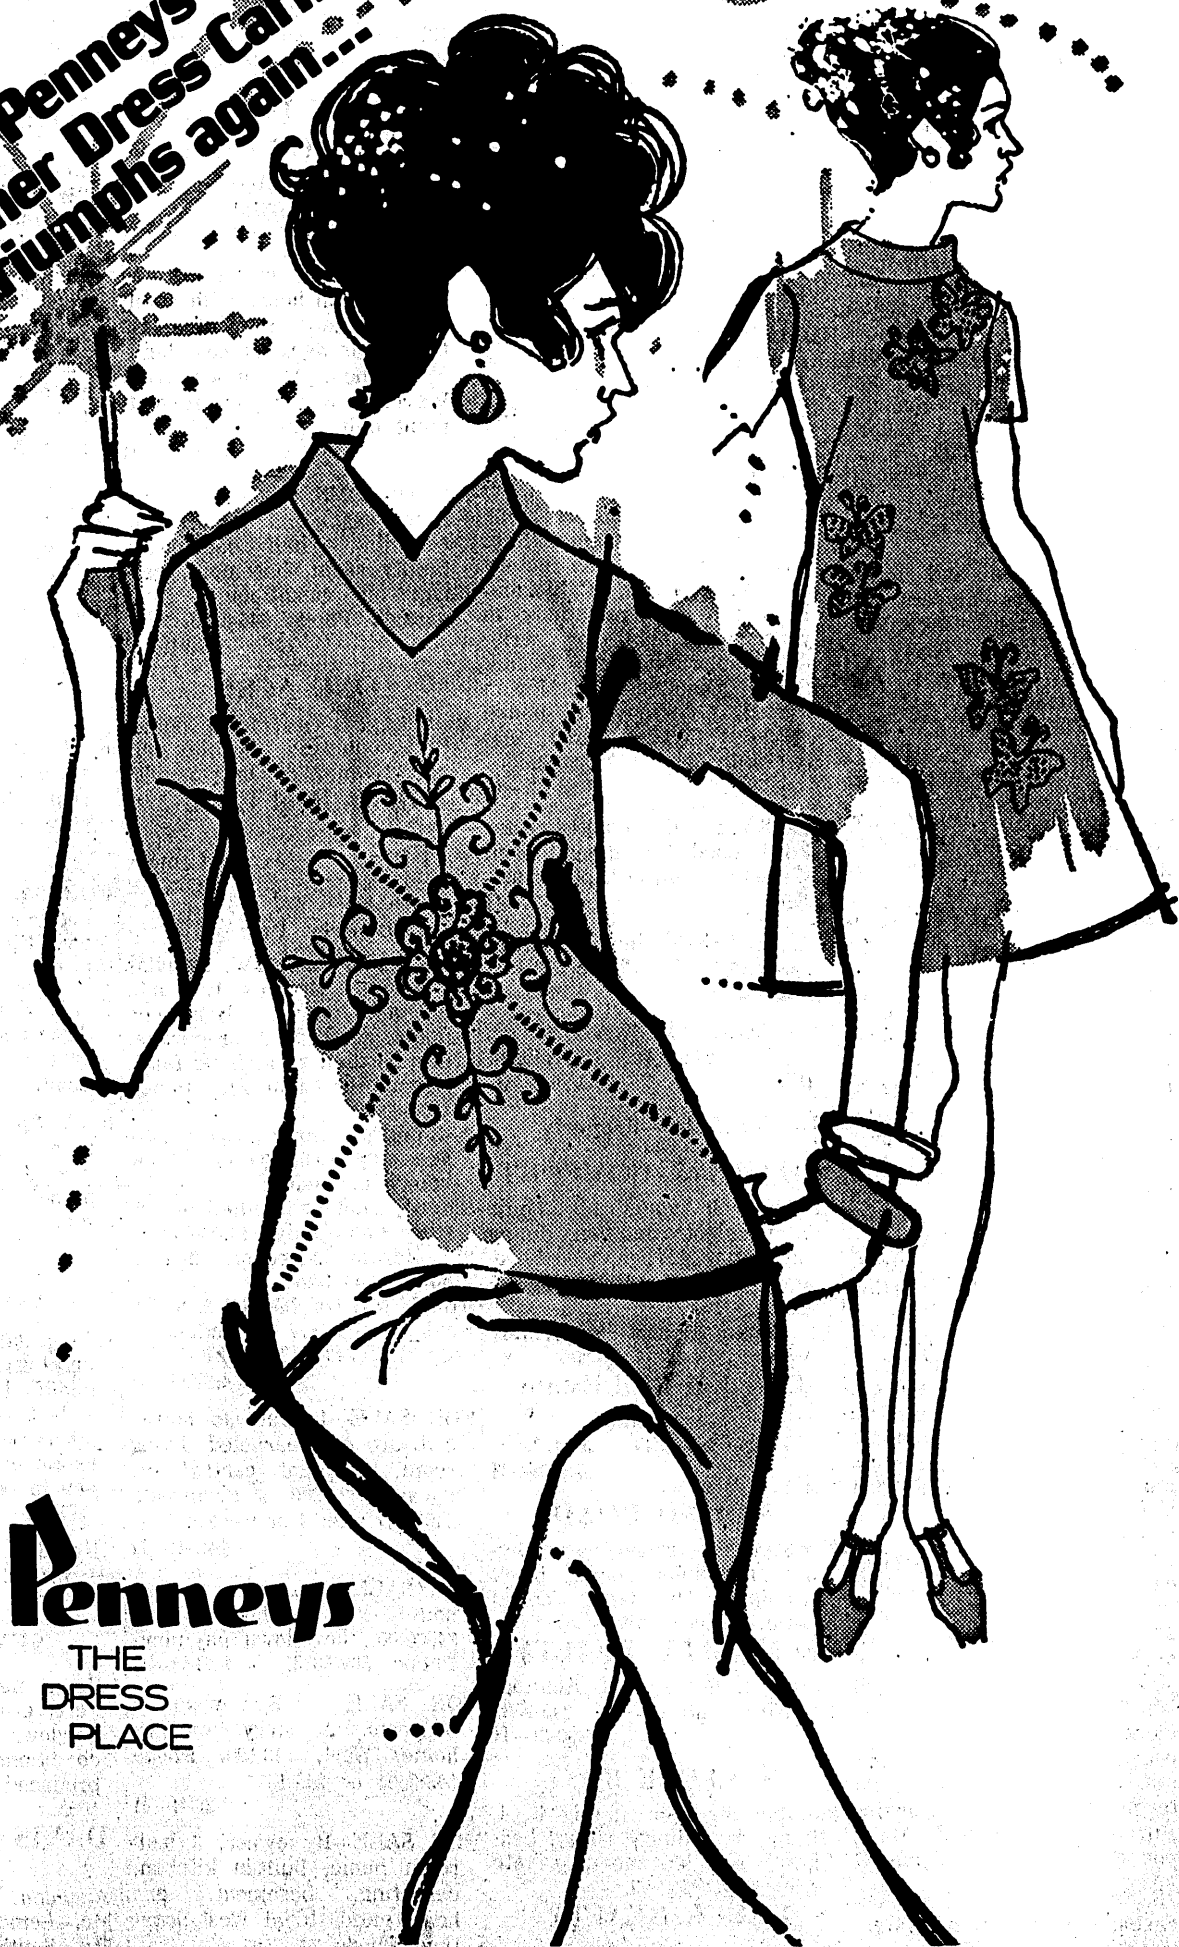

The Spanish explorer Coronado is said to have stopped at the lake to replenish his salt supply during 1540. Since then, millions of tons have been harvested.

Poland Boasts Gal Ambassador From Canada

WARSAW (AP)—Of all the ambassadors in Poland, only the one from Canada qualifies for the receiving end of the Polish custom of handkissing.

Pamela McDougall, the only female ambassador here, is also probably the only one around who started as an unemployed chemist and wound up as an ambassador.

"My mother wanted her four daughters to be trained breadwinners," Miss McDougall says. "And so I chose chemistry."

After completing studies in Canada she went to Paris in 1947 for additional graduate work.

"In Paris, I realized chemistry didn't move me, that the laboratory life wasn't for me," she relates.

Back in Canada, out of work, short on cash, Miss McDougall gravitated to the foreign service "by sheer chance because I needed a job."

She began as a clerk. After passing the foreign service examination, she was assigned to Canada's embassy in West Germany as third secretary. In 1959, she was senior political advisor to the Canadian delegation to the International Control Commission in Vietnam and in this capacity visited Hanoi, the demilitarized zone—and also got hepatitis.

Later she was consul in India and deputy head of the Far Eastern division of the External Affairs Department in Ottawa. She was appointed envoy to Poland in January 1968.

What about those informal diplomatic dinners, where it is customary for the men to sit together and discuss politics and for the wives to go to the living room and chat?

"My male colleagues usually step in and suggest, 'You'll stay with us.' They are a sterling group."

At 43, Miss McDougall is the third youngest ambassador among Warsaw's 60-odd senior diplomats. She has striking silver-gray hair and a quick smile.

Her residence is a two-story, three-bedroom house, 150 yards from the embassy. She describes her routine: up at 8 a.m., breakfast and discussing entertainment plans with the staff of cook and butler, a walk to the office at 9:30, three noon-time Polish lessons a week, home at 1 for lunch, back to the office, finish at 6:30, then out to various receptions and dinners.

Merit Scholarship To Ruth Yeager Of JHS

Ruth M. Yeager, senior at Jacksonville high school and daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Iver F. Yeager of 336 Webster avenue, is one of 3,000 Merit Scholarship winners according to an announcement by John M. Stalnaker, president of the National Scholarship Corporation.

Ruth M. Yeager

Miss Yeager will attend Macalester College and major in mathematics. Merit Scholars are chosen from among 15,000 highly qualified students who became finalists in the 1968-69 Merit program. A committee of skilled evaluators, drawn largely from the college admissions field, select the 1,000 winners of unrestricted National Merit $1,000 Scholarships awarded on a state-by-state basis, according to high school population. The committee considers each finalist's high school grades, accomplishments outside the classroom, extracurricular activities, and school recommendations, in addition to his or her scores on two nationwide tests.

Bluff Springs Supervisor Again Heads Cass Board

BEARDSTOWN — Gilbert Lebkuecher, supervisor from Bluff Springs township, has been re-elected chairman of the county board, a job he has held for a dozen years.

The reorganization meeting of the board was held recently at the courthouse in Virginia and members of the board, 10 Democrats and three Republicans, have resumed their tasks, doing the county's business.

County Clerk Gus Carls said Saturday that there are a myriad of tasks ahead for the board, including two or three new programs: the Cass County Housing Authority operation and expanded probation facilities.

The work is in the hands of veteran officials. The board chairman was first elevated to the office in 1958 when he was chosen to complete the unexpired term of Carls at the time Carls was elected to the county clerkship. Other veterans on the board include Nick Long of Beardstown and Martin Maslin of Virginia, both of whom were first elected in 1955.

The rookie on the board is Irvell Gerdes, a Democrat, elected at Chandlerville to succeed Supervisor Jurgens, a Republican.

At the present time the Cass board has gone as far as it can in preparing for the "One Man, One Vote Law" and is awaiting legislative action. Plans for this transition have been made by the legislative committee headed by Mrs. Esther Morrison of Arenzville.

The county board is also responsible for the activity of the Cass County Housing Authority, which is headed by

Hinderliter Is Consultant For YMCA Campaign

The YMCA campaign office of the Civic Action Fund for the Sherwood Eddy Memorial YMCA announced Wednesday that Hobart Hinderliter, YMCA board member, will act in the capacity as special consultant for gift investments on the part of rural residents in the "Y's" $503,000 capitol fund drive.

Hobart Hinderliter

Hinderliter pointed out, "Many farmers are not aware of their tax advantages when making gift investments in the Y." He added, "I am confident that when we present our needs to many farmers within the area who have an interest in youth, they will want to make a gift investment in our Civic Action Fund."

Tax advantages for farmers giving crops to a non-profit group such as the Y can realize large savings by turning over their sale of crops to the Y upon harvest, he pointed out. The commencement for the campaign is set for May 12, which will initiate "Y Week" activities in Jacksonville.

Plan To Relocate TB Clinic In June

The Oaklawn TB Out-Patient Clinic is scheduled to be moved in recent years through this fund.

Mrs. Verne Anderson may be contacted by persons who wish more information.

Plan Annual Meeting
Mrs. Anderson announced that the annual meeting will be held in June at Hamilton's Restaurant, and will be a dessert meeting. All directors will be notified and any other interested persons may attend by making reservation.

Mr. David L. Cray, business manager for the Rock Island County County TB Sanatorium Board will speak about plans to form large area units combining smaller tuberculosis associations in the state. All states are working on this long range plan at present, however, and representation will still be as of now, to reach more people with more health services by combined facilities.

A report was given by Mrs. Harry Killam, a representative of the Federated Womens Clubs regarding a two-year project to purchase a Cassette: a frame used to hold x-rays for easier reading. These x-ray films taken at the out patient clinic often detect other abnormalities other than x-ray of lungs with little x-ray exposure to the patron.

Proceedings for the sale or lease of the present sanatorium building are scheduled to begin immediately after the move. All proceeds realized from the transaction will go into the county TB fund.

Same Schedule
Mrs. Howard stated that the present hours of the clinic will be maintained following the move. X-ray services are available every week day except Tuesdays from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m., and by appointment Saturday mornings. Medication is given by Mrs. Howard from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m., and on Saturday mornings by appointment only.

It was reported that more than 200 persons had x-rays taken at the clinic, while numerous others received medication or underwent skin tests.

Mrs. Howard stated that one person from Morgan County is currently hospitalized in Springfield: the closest bed facility for persons requiring care other than medication administered at the out-patient clinic.

Financial Report
Mrs. Verne Anderson, secretary of the board, announced that the 1968 Christmas Seal Campaign, which officially ended in March, had raised $6,492.05. A pro-rated percentage amounting to $1,835.49 was paid to the state office.

The board extended appreciation for the continued support of volunteers in the annual campaign. A fund entitled Morris Greenberg Memorial Fund, set up following Dr. Greenberg's death in 1965 by his family and friends, was again mentioned as available to male students wishing to pursue a nursing career. Financial aid is applied on tuition for any man pursuing a degree in RN training, however, the entire amount will be paid for books, uniforms and tuition for any male wishing to enter the School of Practical Nursing in conjunction with School District 17.

Dr. Greenberg was Medical Director at Oaklawn several years and keenly felt need for more male nurses. Two young

Rose Underlines State Workers' Right To Write
State Rep. Thomas C. Rose, announced that freedom of communication between state employees and legislators is unimpaired, contrary to misunderstandings that came about with regard to a notice put out by the Jacksonville State Hospital.

Rose said that some employees of the Hospital, through a statement in the Daily Information Bulletin, received the impression that contacts, either as state employees or individuals, had to be reported through channels in writing to the Superintendent's Office.

Rose contacted the Governor's Office and was told this was incorrect and that a clarification would be issued through the acting Director of the Department of Mental Health, John F. Briggs.

"Freedom of public information and communication must be unimpaired in order that the legislator can know the feelings of constituents as to pending legislation," Rose said.

"Any citizen has the right to give me his opinion on a pending measure. This knowledge is most important to me and it is important to him to be able to express himself without fear," he concluded.

Tax Statements Set For Delivery Here Thursday

Approximately 30,000 tax statements will be delivered to Morgan county residents Thursday or Friday.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Robert Hall who is in charge of the tax division said the tax bills were delivered to the post office Wednesday afternoon and would be delivered by postmen to county residents during the next two days.

The total amount of taxes expected is $6,326,951.27 compared to $5,799,089.42 for 1968.

Taxes are due and payable before June 1, at least the first half of the real estate taxes and all of the personal property taxes.

Persons with complaints or inquiries concerning their assessments should call at the office of the supervisor of assessments at the courthouse. Those who did not receive a tax bill for some reason should inquire at the sheriff's office.

All tax bills are payable at the sheriff's office in the courthouse. Payments may also be mailed to the sheriff's office.
